SHOT ABOARD THE VERITY

INVESTIGATION NOW PROCEEDING
REPORTED TO BE SUICIDE

Strict secrecy is being preserved by the naval authorities for the present concerning a tragedy aboard the destroyer, H.M.S. Verity, which occurred last night.

It is understood that investigations made on board after the firing of a shot had been heard revealed the dead body of Sub-Lieutenant D. E. Gillespie, the most junior officer on the ship.

It is understood that H.M.S. Verity was returning to Hongkong when the shooting occurred. She is now lying alongside the wall at the Dockyard.

INVESTIGATION PROCEEDING.

An official inquiry is believed to be proceeding into the affair. Sub-Lieutenant Gillespie, who was promoted to his rank in 1932, joined the Verity on the China Station in February last year.

The funeral is taking place tomorrow morning, leaving the Naval Hospital at Wanchai at ten o'clock.

INDEPENDENCE IN SINKIANG
GOVERNMENT FORMED

Moscow, Jan. 23. A new government, proclaiming its independence of China, has been established at Kashgar, according to a Tass Agency report from Tashkent.

Hotan Emir, whose domain is near the Indian border, is said to be actively supporting the new government, which is said to have declared itself the government of the whole of the eastern part of Sinkiang Province, and has also declared its full separation from China.

Savit Domula, a well-known merchant, who is looked upon as a protégé of Hotan Emir, heads the new Government.

A delegation has been sent to Kabul to negotiate mutual recognition with Afghanistan.

It is understood the mission will afterwards go to India.

SOUND BRITISH FINANCES

MORE REVENUE; LESS EXPENDITURE

London, Jan. 23. The latest Treasury returns show that ordinary revenue for the current financial year up to 20th January amounted to £491,374,770. At the corresponding date of last year, the amount stood at £485,620,480.

Definite fears of another war are entertained in Vienna. Preparations are being made by the provision of bomb proof shelters and civilians have been compelled to practice. Photo shows a bored looking party waiting for the "enemy attackers" to draw off.

JAPANESE BUDGET

163 MILLION YEN FOR MANCHURIA

ARMY AND NAVY Y.300,000,000

Tokyo, Jan. 23. Presenting the Budget in the Lower Chamber of the Diet this evening, the aged Minister of Finance, Mr. Takahashi stated that altogether the expenditure will total Yen.2,112,000,000.

Since the present economic condition of Japan does not warrant any increases in taxation, it has been decided to raise Yen. 881,000,000 by loans, which represents a decrease in loan flotation of Yen.131,000,000 as compared with last year.

Mr. Takahashi outlined the more important individual appropriations as follows:

Manchuria, Yen.163,000,000.

Emergency Relief, Yen.125,000,000.

Army, Yen.110,000,000.

Navy, Yen.190,000,000.

Foreign Exchange losses, Yen. 80,000,000.

VIGOROUS SPEECH BY DOLLFUSS

VIENNA AUDIENCE STIRRED

Vienna, Jan. 23.

Another fighting speech was delivered to-night by the Chancellor, Dr. Dollfuss, expressing the Government's determination to fight the Nazis with every weapon at their command.

He declared that Austria's patience and forbearance had reached the breaking-point; had, in fact, ended. They were no longer going to put up with terrorism any longer.

Austria, as a united nation was determined to assert itself and to crush terrorism within its own borders, while regarding terrorism from abroad, the Chancellor declared that he is considering lodging an appeal to the League of Nations if Germany does not give the assurances demanded to prevent the flood of propaganda weapons and money from crossing the Austrian border.

Dr. Dollfuss has addressed an enormous crowd consisting of thousands of members of the new Patriotic Front, who were whipped to a fever of enthusiasm by the speech of the Chancellor.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

Shanghai, Jan. 24.

A Chinese employee of the Chartered Bank has been arrested in connexion with the forgery of cheques for $130,000, drawn on the British-American Tobacco Company. In the meantime, the Russian named Ionin, who was arrested on January 20th, is still in custody after being charged with obtaining money by forgery.

The fact that the serial number of the forged cheques corresponded to those in the British-American Tobacco Company account led to the belief that an employee or employees of the Bank had aided, and the arrest to-day was a sequel.—Reuter.

THE ARMAMENT CONFLICT

GERMAN REPLY TO FRANCE

DISAPPOINTMENT FELT

Paris, Jan. 23.

It is reliably learned that the French Government is definitely disappointed with the nature of the German Reply to the French memorandum on disarmament.

While the text of the document is still withheld, it is understood that the German Reply makes no concessions to the French proposals, but instead courteous presents reasoned arguments in justification of Germany's previous demands.

The Note further puts a number of questions on technical points and these are being studied by the French Ministers who are on the National Defence Committee of the Cabinet.

It is generally expected that the French Government's reply to Germany will be made as rapidly as the internal political situation allows.

BRITISH INTERVENTION?

In the meantime, France attaches the greatest importance to the possibility that the British Cabinet will to-morrow decide to make proposals to Germany from the British angle in an effort to modify what is regarded in France as German intransigence.—Reuter.

The Disarmament Committee of the Cabinet met this afternoon when the members had before them the texts of the German reply to the British questions and to the French Aide Memoire on armaments.

A full meeting of the Cabinet takes place to-morrow.—British Wireless.

AMERICAN TREASURY LOAN ISSUES

Totalling One Thousand Million Dollars

Washington, Jan. 23.

The Treasury Department announces the issue of short-term loans to the value of $1,000,000,000.

Half of the sum will be in Treasury Notes, bearing interest at the rate of two and a half per cent. and maturing on March 15, 1935.

The other half will be in the form of six-month certificates of indebtedness, at one and a half per cent. interest, maturing on September 15.—Reuter.

NEW NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

PREMIER CHEERED AND BOOED AT LEEDS

MIXED RECEPTION

London, Jan. 23.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, had a most uncomfortable meeting at Leeds to-night when inaugurating the official National Government campaign to restore confidence in the present Ministry.

The campaign is the Government's response to the shocks provided in recent by-elections, disclosing everywhere a sharp slump in National Government stock. It meets the complaint that nothing has been done to meet the steady campaigning of the opposition in the country.

The Premier was not, however, well received. Cheers went up on his appearance, but they were accompanied by booing and catcalls, and Mr. MacDonald was repeatedly interrupted.

In the course of his address the Premier ranged over a wide field. He referred to the Anglo-French tariff negotiations and expressed the opinion that France's latest proposal was very unjust to British industry. He believed that the French would also come to think so.

TRADE BARRIERS

The Government, he added, was ready to stop in and take up the work of getting government to come to agreements to remove unnecessary trade barriers as soon as circumstances made a satisfactory conclusion likely.

He reaffirmed that the Government was loyal to the League of Nations and hoped in co-operation with other nations, like Italy and France, and the smaller Powers, to devise a means to make the League more secure than ever to face the problems confronting them.—Reuter.

ACTION DEMANDED

PROHIBITION OF IMPORTS

HUGE PROTEST MEETING

London, Jan. 23.

Lively scenes were witnessed at the great anti-Japanese dumping protest demonstrations in Manchester to-day, although perfect order was maintained throughout the proceedings.

Action! Action! Action! was the demand of the speakers, who addressed an audience of over seven thousand representative of some of the important elements in the Lancashire cotton industry.

No fewer than seven Conservative M.P.s were on the platform. A resolution was unanimously passed calling for immediate government action against Japanese competition, demanding, among other things, that an Anglo-Japanese Commercial Agreement containing the most favoured nation clause should be denounced and that the Dominions and the Colonies be persuaded to do the same.

PROHIBITION DEMANDED

Mr. Commander F. W. Astbury (Con., Salford, West), asserted that to put a tax on Japanese goods was useless. They wanted prohibition pure and simple.

Mr. Richards predicted that unless something was done, the next election would sweep every member of the Cabinet from office.

Mr. Shackleton asked why the Japanese delegation had been in Britain for several months without receiving instructions from Tokyo.

The resolutions were carried with acclamation.—Reuter.

HAPPY DAYS ARE NEAR AGAIN

NORTH ENGLAND OPTIMISM

GREAT ACTIVITY IN ENGINEERING

London, Jan. 23.

A more cheerful review of the basic industries of the North of England than has been possible for several years was given by Mr. Allan Paton, the chairman, to the shareholders of Martin's Bank at Liverpool to-day.

He summarised the outlook as follows:—Cotton more hopeful; shipbuilding, a better outlook assured; iron and steel, a steady improvement; engineering, great activity; agriculture, a decided change in the outlook; wool and woollens, a decided change in the outlook.

To the gain in these directions, said Mr. Paton, were to be added the cheering statements concerning the national revenue and the renewed confidence in sterling.

He said Great Britain's recovery was proceeding on normal lines and expressed the view that her policy of concentrating on lower rates of interest had had good effects on industry.

CLYDE OUTLOOK

Although only 31 vessels were launched on the Clyde last year, it still maintained its position as the premier shipbuilding river in the world, stated the President of the Glasgow Shipowners at the annual meeting to-day.

He said, had seen shipbuilding at its low water mark, but the output of all shipbuilding nations had totalled only 680,000 tons as compared with 970,000 the previous year.

The present year was bound to show a great improvement and the new, on-going placed with the Clyde was already 200,000 tons compared with last year's output of 60,000 tons. It required half a million tons to make the Clyde yards even moderately busy, he added.—British Wireless.

Shanghai was also severely shaken by a series of tremors with the result that many houses collapsed or were damaged and many inhabitants killed or injured.

A mill near Wuyuan collapsed, bringing death to about 100 soldiers.—Central News.

CHAPTER III

From Ring to Cabaret

The Professor, his eyes shining, got up suddenly amid the crowd's acclaim for the unknown fighter. "Young Gaffney broke through his tombstone to-night! My Boy's come back to me!" He struggled through the mass of excited and still yelling humanity, after Steve who had stopped in the aisle to speak to a girl in evening wrap. The promoter tagged after him saying: "Now wait a minute, Professor."

"Come on," Steve was saying to the girl who was smiling up at him. They fought their way down the aisle. Steve took her into a little arway in the tunnel to the dressing rooms and there turned to confront her. She held out her hand. "You're pretty good, Morgan."

"Good-bye," He ignored the outstretched hand. "I'll be dressed in three minutes. You wait and figure out what we'll do after."

Her hand was still extended. "There isn't going to be any after, Morgan. I've a taxi waiting."

He took her hand. "Good. I haven't ridden in a taxi in a long while."

She laughed, somewhat sadly, in spite of herself. "No, Morgan."

"You're sure?"

"I'm positive. It isn't in the cards, Morgan."

The girl flicked a drop of sweat from Steve's nose with a little handkerchief. "You go along and take your shower, Morgan. I'll look for you in the papers."

Steve took the handkerchief and grinned: "You're not going to get away from me like this!"

"I've gotten away from lots of things, Morgan. Good-bye." She hurried down the corridor with a semblance of flight in her gait. A fifteen-year-old boy stopped to look admiringly at Steve in passing.

"Hey, want to earn a dollar?" At the boy's eager nod, Steve said quickly: "Go find out what address that lady gives her taxi!"

"You betcha!" said the boy, and was off.

The Professor awaited him in the dressing room. He got up eagerly. "Stephen, my boy, I've gone back thirty years!"

"Sure you haven't gone back thirty drinks?" laughed Steve.

"I'm forgetting all that, boy, just as you must forget everything now that interferes with your career."

"So, I've got a career, have I?"

"You're a champion. You and I are going a long, brilliant path. But there's one thing we've got to settle right now—that female."

"Yeah," grunted Steve under the pressure of his handlers. "What Willie Ryan."

"She's not for you two reasons."

First, a woman around an up-and-coming young fighter is like a maggot in a beautiful red apple. And second, she belongs to the toughest character in this town—Willie Ryan."

"You mean Ryan, the trigger fella?" He chuckled at the Professor's nod. "No kiddin'."

"I'm not inhuman, Stephen. I'll apportion your women when the time comes, just as I'm going to tell you what you're going to eat and what you're going to drink and how much you're going to sleep, and how and when you're going to train. That's all in my hands. And this girl is the first case. Is she out or isn't she?"

The boy he had sent to get the girl's address hung about the dressing room door. Steve, smelling the scent in the handkerchief in his closed fist, put a finger to his lips and nodded to the boy to wait outside.

"Okay, Professor, she's out," Steve smiled to himself. "But say, if you're going to apportion my life like that, how about apportioning me that sixty bucks?"

"It's here, Stephen. You'll have it when you're dressed. And remember—save your money. Later on I'll advise you about investments."

"Okay, Professor. Hurry it up, you boys, I'm tired and want to get out of here."

Willie Ryan, a comparatively young man neatly dressed in dinner coat, sat at the desk in his office at the cabaret of which he was the proprietor, a telephone receiver at his ear. Opposite him sat a weazened, gray-haired, jockey-type little man known as the Adopted Son, whose slate-blue eyes glittered as he listened.

"Yes, yes, I know she was there," Willie was saying. "But what was the fighter's name? . . . Morgan, Eh? Never heard of him. . . . That's all."

He hung up, stared at the wall, and muttered: "Steve Morgan."

At his words the Adopted Son arose and looked at Willie as though awaiting orders. Willie shook his head slightly and said: "Don't be silly," as a boy entered to announce:

"Miss Ferber's here, sir. She's gone to her dressing room."

After a moment's thought, Willie arose and left his office, the Adopted Son following him. He knocked on the door of a particular dressing room.

"Come in, Willie," a voice called. When he had closed the door softly, she turned to him from her dressing table. "Hello, Mister. Did you think I had fallen down a drain?"

"Did you?" he asked, simply, staring straight into her eyes. "Funny—just before I left to come over here a girl I know in Cleveland. She broke off and turned quickly to him again, laughing. "We both know that's a lot of hokey, don't we?"

Willie nodded and smiled. "Was it a good fight, Belle?"

"A pretty short one," said Belle Ferber, and turned again quickly. "Look here, Mister, you haven't been having any of your bird dogs follow me, have you?"

"You know better than that. Just a couple of noney boys who were there, and thought they'd get in strong if they told." He came close to her. "Since when this passion for palookas?"

"Since I drove into the ditch at dawn. . . . Let's forget it, Willie. He did me a favour and in return I went up to see him fight. And if there ever was a balloon-headed, fresh-lipped, puff-chested specimen, he's it."

"In other words—he's kind of in your hair?"

"Ummmm—-but I'm taking a shampoo when I get home to-night."

Ryan took her arms and turned her about to face him. "I can't really kid about this!"

"I never have, Willie. If this had ever happened to me before, you know you'd have known about it."

"What's gotten into you all of a sudden?"

"Willie. . . . Don't you ever look at a girl. . . . and after she's gone, don't you think of her, just a little?"

"Not since you've given me the chance to think about you."

"I'm sorry. This is getting a little nutty. How about taking your girl friend home to-night and continuing the discussion there?"

"All right." She patted his shoulder affectionately as he left to enter the cabaret. They made their way to a table where the Adopted Son sat with two middle-aged, sharp-looking men. The men stood up and Willie introduced them—Sid Munsey from Chicago and George Lyons from Philadelphia.

Belle threw a kind word to their towns, nodded at the Adopted Son, and sat down.

"You know," said Willie, "since I sold out my piece in the champ I've been looking for a new heavy-weight to back. Belle's just been doing a little scouting for me. She sees a prospect and then loses interest in him while I—"

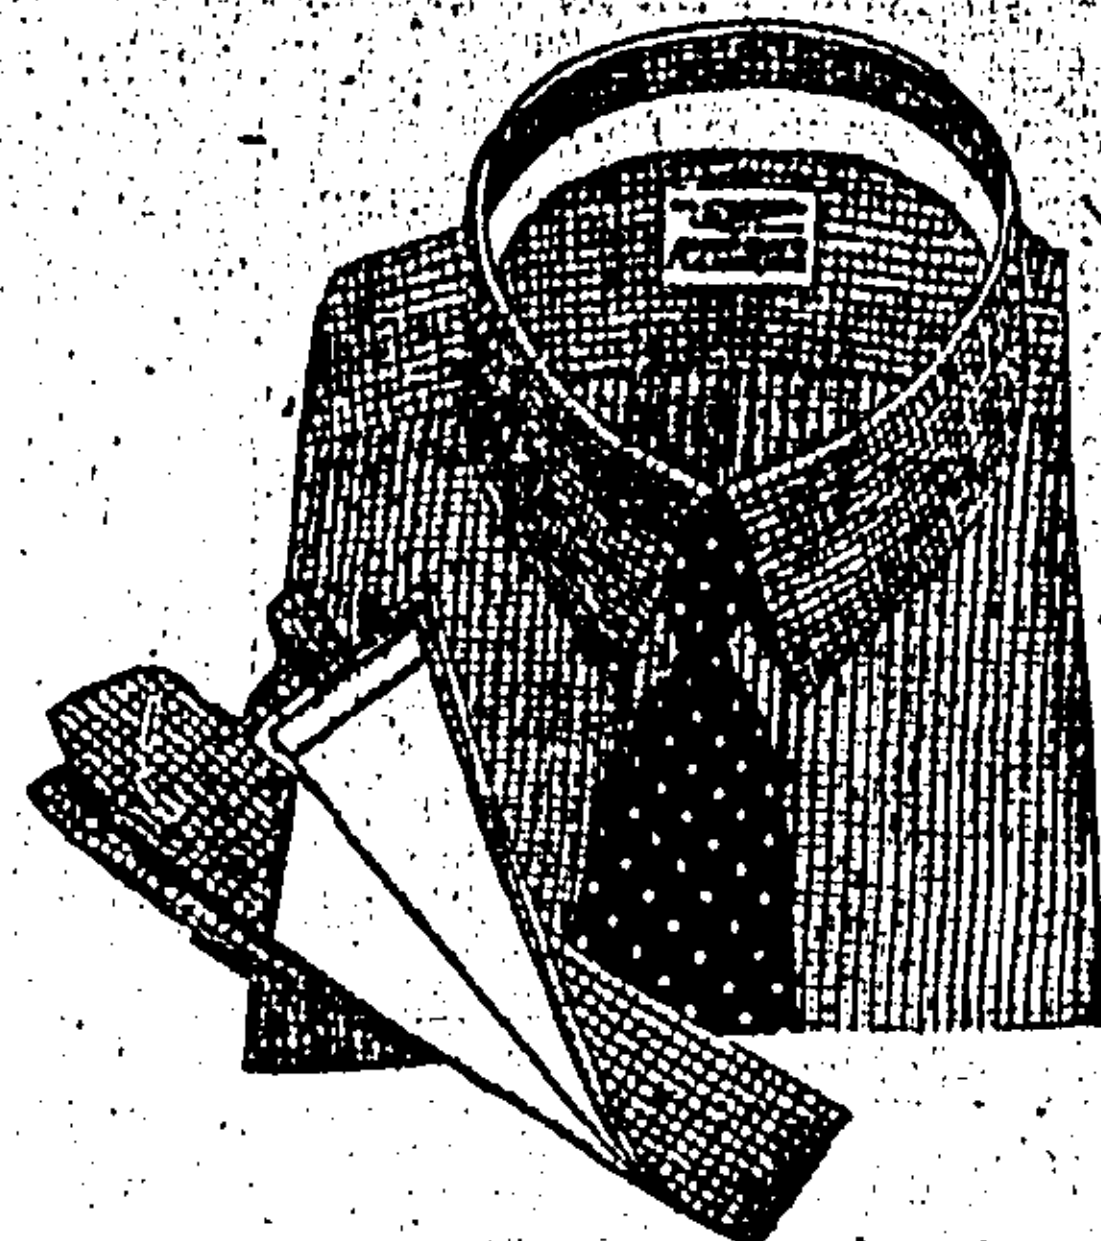

He broke off at the sound of an argument a short distance away. The headwaiter was barring the progress of a well-set up young man in a sack suit. "I'm sorry. It's a strict rule. You must be in a dinner coat."

"What for?" said the voice of Steve Morgan. "I don't want any dinner. Just a couple of drinks."

He caught sight of Miss Ferber, saluted her with an easy smile. "Just put me in a corner anywhere."

Belle's eyes met those of Willie Ryan a little falteringly. "Why that's our old friend, Steve Morgan."

EMPIRE SETTLEMENT.

SCHEMES FOR DISTRIBUTION OF POPULATION

London, Jan. 23. A motion standing on the Order Paper of the House of Commons, with the support of 309 members, representing all parties, animates that the time has arrived when active steps should be taken to consider schemes for distribution of the population of the Empire, and urging the Government to consult with the Dominions and Colonies with a view to the promotion of organized Empire settlement.

The Prime Minister is to be asked if he will grant a day for the discussion of this motion when Parliament reassembles next week. —British Wireless.

Children's Faces

What They Tell.

Make a practice of studying the face of your child, for in this way you will learn much regarding the little one's as yet undeveloped natural character, and thus be able by gentle influence to help development of good and repression of undesirable tendencies.

You can also tell from a child's face the general condition of its health. For example, the thin, melancholy-looking, pallid, irritable infant almost invariably has something wrong with its digestion; its stomach and intestinal tract are not functioning properly, or it is afflicted with worms. The child's urgent need in such a case is best provided by Baby's Own Tablets.

The prescription of a doctor who for many years practiced as a children's specialist, Baby's Own Tablets have earned a world-wide reputation as a specific for such troubles as infantile indigestion, constipation, colic, wind, and teething pains. They reduce fever, relieve cramp and colds, expel worms, quiet the nerves and promote health-giving sleep in a perfectly natural way.

No parent need have a moment's hesitation about administering these Tablets, for they are guaranteed to contain not the minutest particle of narcotic or other harmful drug, and to be equally good and helpful for the newly born infant as for the child six or seven years old. Any chemist can supply them.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1934.

JAPAN STANDS PAT

Taken at its face value, Mr. Hirota's speech in the Diet, outlining foreign policy, depicts Japan as a nation anxious to be on terms of friendship with everybody, animated by no ulterior motives whatever, and pledged to the ideal of universal brotherhood. The utterance is, in fact, full of pleasing platitudes, but with little that is concrete from which to deduce Japan's real aims and policies. Stripped of its verbiage, however, there is running through the declaration, thinly disguised though it be, a plain intimation that nothing is to be allowed to interfere with Japan's plans for a hegemony of the Far East. "We should not forget," says Mr. Hirota, "that Japan serves as the only corner-stone for the edifice of the peace of Eastern Asia." In these words, he places his country in the self-appointed role of guardian of peace in the Far East and as the dominant factor in the situation. The impression is left that Japan envisages the peace of the East as a Japanese-controlled peace—peace for everybody so long as Japan is permitted to dictate the terms. It is not without significance in this connection that Mr. Hirota admits that Japan decided to withdraw from the League of Nations because other nations did not see eye to eye with her on "the fundamental principles of preserving peace in Eastern Asia." Japan's seizure of Manchuria is therefore an essential element in her conception of Far Eastern concord, even though in actual effect it has done more than anything else to bring about the present state of tension and distrust. Mr. Hirota further asserts that Japan's diplomacy is based on nothing but what is legitimate and rational as consonant with her "national mission." Precisely what that mission is, Mr. Hirota fails to disclose. None the less, there need be no misapprehension on that point, if, as seems indicated, Japan intends to adhere rigorously to her recent policies. There is no denial by Mr. Hirota that Japan is at the moment facing serious problems in her foreign relations. Indeed, there is apparent an under-current of anxiety as to the future in this regard, but the people are told to unite and be prepared to face with courage whatever difficulties may arise. Thus, despite the laboured effort to paint the picture as rosily as possible, we are left with a feeling that no real gesture towards a composing of existing differences or impending conflicts has been made. Japan adheres to her policies, and is evidently prepared to sink or swim by them. We could have hoped for a more reassuring and pacifying exposition of her intentions.

NOTES OF THE DAY

SAFETY: FIRST

The Colony's Safety First campaign is so clearly a sound measure of real value in the task of reducing the toll of the road that it seems a pity to draw attention to some of the mistakes which will probably be remedied on another occasion. The most remarkable—that of posting warning notices on the road side of pillars—has already been rectified to a large extent. And another time, it would be better if motorists were not asked to create a blind spot on their left by pasting Safety First appeals on the windscreen. It would be of greater value, if of any at all, were it placed at the rear of the vehicle within sight of another motorist in pursuit. In front, it can only serve as a reminder to a pedestrian who is unfortunately close enough to get bowled over!

PRACTICAL MEASURES

In any event, propaganda of the type employed in the campaign so far is not the best calculated to sink in; and if a real effort is to be made to reduce accidents, supplementary measures of a more practical nature are desirable. One of our contemporaries has referred to the necessity for a definite ruling on right of way. Other points worth bearing in mind are the improvement of road surfaces as a guard against skidding and adequate marking of the roads. At the present time, rain on some of our roads converts them into veritable death-traps for both motorists and pedestrians, while road markings are in many places worn out very quickly.

CHIEF CAUSE

The chief cause of accidents, so far as the actual handling of the vehicle is concerned, seems to be the reckless, rather than the inexperienced driver. He may be a good driver who is in a great hurry, or he may be a bad driver who has no manners; but whatever he is, he must be discovered and made to mend his ways. The mobile police are the only people who are able to undertake this important work. They should be relieved of duties connected with technical offences which have no reference to road safety, and be ordered to concentrate upon discovering the dangerous driver. In addition, they should have powers to deal with the ill-mannered driver who may at any instant become dangerous.

THE VEHICLE

Existing laws are sufficiently wide to deal with all instances of fault mechanisms; but there is another way in which the vehicle may be considered. It may be considered from the point of view of inherent dangerousness. Some vehicles are painted a colour which effectively camouflages them at night or when visibility is low. If slow-moving vehicles were to be painted a light colour, they would be more readily seen at night and accidents would be decreased. This appears to be a detail, but it is by attention to such details that road safety will be secured. These are immediately practical methods of reducing accidents. As an adjunct to them is the matter of education, education of drivers and of all other members of the public in road sense and road rules.

WAR DEBTS

Are the war debts dead? Judging by the attention—or lack of attention, the December payments, or lack of payments have received, it would seem so. Of $152,952,637 due, $8,898,123, or about 5 cents on the dollar, was collected. France, Poland, Estonia and Belgium didn't send a sou. Great Britain and several others reduced even the modest token payments of June 15. And there is every indication that this kind of "revision" will proceed rapidly toward complete extinction of the debts. Any purpose to make adjustments seems to be extinct already. A year ago, France talked about "suspension" of payments, and in June London was planning negotiations with Washington. Since then France has ceased to euphemise default and Britain has negotiated without result. In America there seems to have been a default of opinion, indeed, of public interest. Perhaps in the present session of Congress there may be some attempt to revive the old make-them-pay chorus. But on the whole the United States is drifting into "cancellation" with hardly a ripple of protest.

GERMANY'S POLICY WITH REGARD TO RACE

By the Minister of the Interior, Dr. Frick.

The national-socialist movement can claim to have saved the German nation under the leadership of Adolf Hitler from complete physical destruction and the Reich from dissolution. But it would be a great mistake to believe that hereby the main problem had also been already solved. Everybody having a deeper knowledge of these questions knows that the more difficult task, namely the arrest of the cultural and racial decline of the German nation, must still be accomplished. Germany has not only suffered from immense losses of the best of her race during the Great War, but is to-day also the country which shows the strongest decline in the birth-rate. Neither Berlin and the other great towns, nor the middle and smaller towns are today capable of maintaining the number of their population. Only the rural districts still show a small surplus of births which is, however, insufficient to compensate the losses in the German towns. Our people as a nation are without doubt becoming gradually too old and senile. But it is not only the number but also the value and quality of a part of the population which in the same degree give rise to grave reflections, because the number of hereditarily unsound families is steadily increasing. It must be borne in mind that in particular imbeciles and mentally deficient persons often have on the average greater progeny than the hereditarily sound. That means that the more valuable and more capable parts of the population will be severely reduced in numbers within a few generations, if this state of affairs continues as hitherto. Furthermore we must watch with anxiety the continuous mixture of races and the degeneration of our racial status. The former German Government lacked the courage to bring about a change in this dangerous state of our population.

It is interesting to search for the causes of this decline. If we glance at German history we observe that we have changed from an agricultural State into an industrial one. Already in 1807, Hardenberg commenced the development of an industrial State. By allowing the soil to become private property he paved the way to the liberalistic system of economy in Germany. The growth of towns and the industrialisation of Germany was a further consequence. The natural development of the people with the peasant's idea of family and the selection of the fittest in the country, ceased to remain effective. Our legal system, the monetary conditions and the insurance laws tended to change the ideas of morals, of descent, family and progeny. Thus individualism, class-hatred, Marxism and Communism developed. Mechanisation of labour and economic slavery after the War simultaneously helped to accentuate the moral decline of our nations. The liberalistic spirit poisoned its soul and destroyed the sense for family life and the desire for children. Man and wife became estranged from family life. The man regarded his wife merely as his life companion but no more as the mother of his children. The natural consequence was an extremely heavy decline in the birth-rate in Germany.

In view of the burden of indolence, taxation and contributions to State insurance weighing heavily on our people we must not shrink from perceiving that the State will have to change the entire legal system and lower the expenses for the support of the mentally deficient and antisocial persons. It is surprising to learn what costs the public has to bear for these deficient and antisocial individuals, for the sick and imbeciles, for the lunatics and criminals. All these cost the State many times more than the assistance of a sound individual requires. In consequence of this exaggerated care for the single individual the will to work of the healthy is automatically destroyed and the desire of the valuable families to limit their progeny is promoted. This kind of modern humanitarian idea and social care for the sick, weak and inferior individual works out in the end as a cruelty to the people on the whole and ultimately as an antisocial measure which must finally lead to destruction. In order to avert such disaster it is necessary to change the entire system of regulations for public health and to modify the duties of this department in respect to racial hygiene and greater consideration of race and population. On the one side the State has the duty to prevent the propagation of persons heavily afflicted by hereditary diseases and on the other to care for the unborn, i.e., to try by all means to increase the number of hereditarily sound progeny. Naturally we shall also continue to take care of the sick and mentally deficient ones but in the interest of the whole nation and its cultural standard this must not be done in a form of misunderstood humanity to the disadvantage of the people hereditarily sound. On the contrary we must consider it a neglect of our Christian and social love of our neighbours if we continue to allow in spite of the knowledge acquired that the hereditarily unsound have progeny, which would mean immense suffering for themselves as well as for the members of this and the coming generations. The Law to prevent hereditarily unsound progeny gives us the opportunity to prevent an undesirable increase of an inferior and deficient population. Little is, however, hereby achieved if we do not succeed in obtaining a sufficient increase of the valuable and hereditarily sound people by positive measures which tend to help the founding of families and thereby to increase the population. The German legislation so far has undoubtedly given advantages to families without or with few children. Unfortunately this development cannot be altered all at once in view of our extremely bad economic position. Naturally we are endeavouring by all means to effect a change particularly in the way of taxation. It is necessary for the men to return to their places of work and for the women to their duties as housewives and mothers. History teaches us that the peasants are the root of our nation and that the preservation of the hereditarily sound German peasant's family is in the end decisive for the growth of our population. The German farm has at all times been the place where the German nation re-

The Very Idea!

THIS MOON.

By Eddie Kelly, Fiddle-Faker

ONCE upon a time we thought that the moon just happened, like bunions, or shroffs, or Editors.

But since we have grown up we have had to modify this view, as we have since been told that it represents that part of the earth which formed the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

It seems that this slice of Earth was accidentally broken off during a disturbance, Noah presumably having a quarrel with his wife at the time.

Anyway this chunk of earth flew off into space and formed a world of its own.

This points to great carelessness on somebody's part. We are not making any insinuations, but it seems to us that land wouldn't have been half so valuable if we'd have had the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans to roam over.

In fact, we could have probably paid our shroffs at the end of the month if we'd have had our rightful share of the moon.

Then there is the more serious issue that has arisen through us losing the moon.

We would have had no America, so there wouldn't have been any films from Hollywood.

There would have been no need for us to live in Hongkong, as it wouldn't have been a seaport.

Body line bowling wouldn't have been invented, because there wouldn't have been any Australia.

What we'd like to know is why some other part of the earth couldn't have been taken instead of the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans.

Russia, for example, would have made a nice little auxiliary moon.

In fact, we know a lot of people who wouldn't bother much if we dispensed with Europe.

We suppose it's too late now to start in with a few sticks of dynamite?

Short Conversation With Sally The Cat

Uncle Ned:—It is no use whining and making a silly fuss just because you haven't seen the Ginger Cat for three days. He is obviously an adventurer in love, and therefore, sickle.

Sally: He loves no one but me.

Uncle Ned: They all say that.

Sally: He said I was "different."

Uncle Ned: That's a pretty old gag, too. Is he misunderstood?

Sally: Yes.

Uncle Ned: And lonely?

Sally: Terribly lonely.

Uncle Ned: All of which convinces me that he is a liar and a seducer.

Sally (dramatically): Nothing you say against him will ever convince me that he is anything but faithful and true.

It was lucky for Sally that she was sitting on the hearth, gazing sentimentally into the fire. Otherwise she might have looked out of the window and seen on the garden wall the sinister silhouette of the One She Loves casting his terrible spell over her rival.

Burglary at Ned's Nest

The beautiful bijou residence occupied by Mr. Edward Kelly, the mystery millionaire, was burgled the other evening when one of his daintily-original parties was in progress.

While his distinguished guests were chattering brilliantly in the sumptuous lounge, telling each other the latest (clever) stories, a burglar entered the imitation oak-panelled dining-room and stole a bottle of whisky.

Women screamed . . . and so did some of the men when they realised it was the last bottle.

Although each guest was questioned closely before leaving, and several openly accused of drinking the whisky in the kitchen, the mystery still remains unsolved.

(With the compliments of Mr. Kelly's Press agent.)

"How shall I be about Mrs. Jones, mother? Real sweet, or sort of a superior?"

ONE-BOOK MEN.

STIMULATING ADDRESS BY MR. B. G. BIRCH

An interesting and stimulating lecture on "Some One-Book Men" was given by Mr. B. G. Birch, M.A., in his presidential address to the Arts Association of the Hongkong University in the Union Assembly Hall last night. There was a good attendance. Mr. R. Campbell was in the chair.

The lecturer said that by the phrase "one-book men" he did not mean men who wrote only one book; there were not many in that class. He meant men who were remembered solely or mainly by one book.

He would not, he said, advance the claim that those one-book men could equal, in the scale of literary values, their harder working and more prolific rivals. In literature, as in other things, though quality came first, quantity still counted for something.

The works of authors such as Dickens, Thackeray and Scott covered vast territories and with such giants of letters the author of a single masterpiece could not compete. He must, to achieve fame, make up in quality for what he lacked in bulk.

Dealing with writers of the 18th and 19th centuries, he surveyed the lives of William Beckford, the eccentric author of the incomparable "Vathek"; Edward Fitzgerald, author of the immortal "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam"; Alexander William Kinglake (1809-91), the author of "Eothen"; Thomas Hughes, author of "Tom Brown's Schooldays" (published in 1857); Philip James Bailey; Richard Doddridge Blackmore (1825-1900) the author of "Lorna Doone," an inspiring novel of the West country.

Speaking of the 17th century one-book men, the lecturer spoke of John Bunyan, author of "Pilgrim's Progress" which had become a classic; Samuel Butler, author of "Hudibras" which was not only the wittiest poem of the 17th century but also one of the two wittiest poems in the English language, the other being Byron's "Don Juan."

Both poems were mock-epics. The lecturer also referred to the name of Samuel Pepys and said that he has surely the nearly perfect example of the one-book man. True, Pepys did not set out to write a book, but to keep a diary, which had become one of the unique masterpieces of literature and on the strength of it Pepys had his place in literary history.

The lecturer was accorded a hearty vote of thanks.

MISSION LOSES CASE.

SCHOOL TEACHER'S CLAIM
FOR $600

The book-keeping methods of the Roman Catholic Mission, of 10, Cairns Road, Hongkong, were the subject of an action before the Pilsane Judge, Mr. R. E. Lindell, yesterday, when judgment was given against them for $600 and costs in respect of a claim by a Chinese Christian, Li Tak-sing, Plaintiff, a school teacher, of 109, Yuen Chow Street, Sham Shui Po, claimed this amount as a deposit made on July 13, 1928. Mr. W. Brown, of Hastings and Co., was his legal representative.

Mr. F. X. D'Almada, snr., appeared for the Mission and put forward the defence that the money had been repaid to plaintiff or his wife, and the former had obtained the receipt for the original deposit by a subterfuge and was claiming on it again.

The hearing commenced on January 10, when Fr. O. Liberatore, procurator of the Mission, gave evidence that according to the books kept by Fr. Banchio, former procurator and now in Italy, the amount had been paid. He alleged that the plaintiff deposited sums of money and asked the Fathers not to tell his wife. His wife also had an account from which she drew, also asking for this to be kept from her husband. He suggested that the woman had drawn the $600 unknown to the husband, who was presented the receipt and asked for payment. He was told that the money had been paid and agreed that he could not claim on the receipt which he handed over to the Fathers. A month or so later he called at the Mission and asked for the receipt. As witness was handing it to Fr. Zilloli, plaintiff snatched it from his hand and went away with it.

"Too Trusting."

Cross-examined yesterday, Fr. Liberatore agreed that plaintiff and his wife could draw on the account.

His Lordship asked why Fr. Banchio did not take back the receipt when, according to the system of book-keeping he adopted, he had repaid the deposit.

Witness: I have no doubt Fr. Banchio did that without asking for the receipt back. Such a thing is his Lordship: Fr. Banchio was a very foolish man.

Mr. D'Almada: Too trusting.

Fr. Zilloli, assistant to Fr. Banchio, said that the former procurator often repaid deposits without getting back the receipt, although he drew a coloured line beneath such accounts to show they were closed. Such a line was drawn under the disputed account. They had never had any complaints of this nature before.

Fr. Rosello gave evidence, and when asked if he knew plaintiff, replied yes. Too well.

In giving judgment for plaintiff, his Lordship said there was no doubt that the Mission honestly believed the money had been repaid. It was an unusual case. There was no doubt of the bona fides of the defendants, but they had not discharged the ends of proof which was on them.

GOOD-WILL MISSION.

AUSTRALIANS ENTERTAINED
IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Jan. 23. Mr. W. H. Austin, Commissioner of Trade and Under-Secretary for Labour and Industry in the Queensland Government, and Mr. V. Thomas, Secretary of the Queensland Colliery Federation, who are on a good-will mission in the Far East, were entertained at lunch today by the Shanghai Anzac Society.

The Australian mission members are seeking to foster reciprocal trade between China and Australia. They stated that two Trade Commissioners are being appointed in the Far East, one to Java and one to Shanghai.

The missionaries will leave here for Hongkong next week.—Our Own Correspondent.

CLIENTELE IN COURT.

CHINESE HAIRDRESSER FACES
OPIUM CHARGE

Some of her clientele were among the spectators in the Kowloon Police Court yesterday afternoon, when a widow, Chan Kan, a hairdresser, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones charged with the possession of 960 taels of raw opium and 38 taels of non-Government prepared opium.

Appearing for the defence, Mr. Hin-shing Lo, instructed by Messrs. Lyson and Hall, pleaded not guilty.

For the prosecution, Chief Preventive Officer Buller said that on the morning of January 14, on information received, he and a party of four Chinese revenue officers, went to 254 Reclamation Street. On the staircase leading to the second floor there was a door, which was fastened to the staircase railings at the head of the stairs on the second floor. Getting no response after knocking, although footstep were heard overhead, the door was forced open. The defendant was on the second floor. After a cursory look, Mr. Buller went up to the third floor leaving the C.R.O.s in charge of the woman. The third floor, access to which was only by the door, was not inhabited, and had every indication of being an opium factory and appeared to be used solely for opium.

He returned to the second floor and asked the defendant for the rent receipts. She produced them although she was not the principal tenant.

Mr. Buller gave evidence and said that there was a trap door at the head of the stairs to the third floor. It was hooked back. The only method of access to the third floor was by the stairs.

Question of Access.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, as regards one door for two floors, the witness replied he could not say if there were similar houses in Reclamation Street, Shanghai Street, Canton Road or in Hongkong.

The Magistrate (to Mr. Lo): If my knowledge goes for anything—it is limited—I would say that there may or may not be any definite barrier in the staircase at any point in it.

Replying further, Mr. Buller said his information involved both floors. On the second floor he found nothing relating to the third floor. There were two cubicles on the second floor and both had signs of occupancy.

His Worship stated that control was implied by the fact that no one could get to the third floor without the consent of the defendant, except by force.

Defendant, in the witness stand, said she paid $5.50 cubicle rent to Li Sze who had gone to the country. People were already living on the third floor when she moved in in May last year, but she did not know them. She had seen people going up and down. She never let loose the rope on the door to let people back to the third floor. They pulled a bell which was on the ceiling of the second floor, and below the trap door.

Questioned by his Worship, she admitted she was in charge of the second floor, on the day in question.

The hearing was adjourned to January 30 at 2.30 p.m., bail being allowed in the sum of $5,000.

MARCH ON LONDON.

FIERY JOHN MCGOVERN LEADS JOBLESS

London, Jan. 23. A detachment of unemployed men, headed by the Clydeside Labour M.P. John McGovern, left Glasgow yesterday, joined by 300 other unemployed marchers from Edinburgh, Perth, Dundee and other northern towns, who were accompanied in the Glasgow City Hall during the night.

All of the men looked fit and organisers of the demonstration are convinced that none of them will fall out before reaching London.

The Times says this march ought to be taken for what in fact it is, a ruse of a small political party, or combination of parties, to exploit the hardships of the unemployed and the hardships of an unnecessary mid-winter tramp, for the benefit of a revolutionary movement.—British Wireless.

GERMANY'S POLICY WITH REGARD TO

covered in spite of war and epidemics and from where it always gathered new strength. It must therefore be attempted by all means to couple the best German blood with German ground and soil. Settling must therefore take place in a way that a sufficient increase of the population is ensured by means of legal provisions regulating taxation and the rights of inheritance.

The Reich, the States and Communities must investigate how their entire administration affects the question of population and must reform it as far as necessary. But decrees and economic measures alone do not suffice to awaken the desire for children in a nation. We must not overlook that it is a problem principally of an educational, psychological and ethical character. Youth must also be educated in this sense and it must be regarded as its duty to become fully conscious of the value of German hereditary substance.

I consider it the foremost duty of the Government of the National Revolution to spread and cultivate these ideas in the German nation and to do all in its power to raise and maintain the racial status of the German people in the heart of Europe.

WINNOWING STARTERS FROM NON-STOPPERS

LONDONERS TO CHEER WEST HAM-ARSENAL MATCH

CLUB WHO MAY BE EXPECTED TO SURVIVE

(By "The Pilgrim")

Winnowing the starters from the non-stoppers, the English Football Association Cup goes to the Fourth Round on Saturday, when the 32 surviving clubs take the field to decide the participants in the next eight matches.

Grimsby, who scraped through the last round by sneaking in a quiet goal while Clapton Orient were playing Ring-a-roses round the referee, meet the club they defeated in the second round last year. Plymouth have an advantage this season in being drawn on their own ground.

The Spurs-Hammers engagement at White Hart Lane should provide a record gate and some sensational football. Both teams are capable of producing brilliant if erratic football as I remember them when they shared points on the same ground in the League last season.

Manchester City, the runners-up have a moderate task before them in their visit to Hull. It will be remembered that Everton, the holders, had the misfortune to be eclipsed by Spurs recently on the latter's venue.

Again Derby County entertain the Wolves and again I imagine the Rams will carry off the honours. It was in the third round of the cup last season that the Wolves were vanquished by 6-3 at Derby.

With the remembrance of a 4-1 win over Swansea a few weeks ago at home, Bury will almost welcome the club to their ground on Saturday but form has changed since then, and you never can tell! However, I have decided to favour the home team again though I don't think they will survive another round.

Aston Villa meet their bogey team in Sunderland who beat them in the same round last year at Villa Park by three clear goals, and have drawn with them also at the Park in a League match earlier this season.

Arsenal should have little difficulty in getting through this round at the expense of Crystal Palace and Huddersfield have a still easier task at home to Northampton.

League engagements take a back seat of course and there are only a few in the First and Second Divisions.

With the fixtures as they are, I cannot see any change taking place among the leaders of the Southern Section though if Coventry repeat their performance of last week, they will seriously jeopardise their promotion chances.

If Luton win away on Saturday I think they will have to be regarded as strong contenders also, for they have their good spell to come in my opinion.

Chesterfield I feel, are good for nothing better than a draw at Rochdale of all places, but they can just afford to ease up for a brief spell before the final spurt. They always run things fine at Salter Lane and they will probably gain their promotion on the last match as I witnessed them win it two seasons ago.

If Rangers can keep up their smashing form in the Scottish senior League they may yet snatch the laurels from Motherwell who have found difficulty lately in testing the net.

TEACHING THE TURKS TO PLAY FOOTBALL

HUMOROUS ANECDOTES RELATED BY SYDNEY PUDDEFOOT

PLAYERS ARE TREMENDOUSLY KEEN BUT TOO EXCITABLE

The humours—and sometimes trials—of teaching the Turks to play Association football as it is understood in Britain have been amusingly rerolled by Mr. Sydney Puddefoot, the former West Ham Chesterfield and English international centre forward, who has been engaged to train the Galata Serai (Istanbul) Football Club up to "championship" form.

"The Turks are tremendously keen," he says. "Every Friday (their rest day) and Sunday, nearly all the year round, matches follow each other in the chief stadium here from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. In the very hottest weather they start at 5 p.m. and go on as long as it is light. Spectators bring their food and sit out the whole series.

HUFFY REFEREE.

"But this keenness makes the players too excitable. There are always police and an ambulance on the ground. In the middle of a match, supposing the referee gives a penalty or there is some incident, a team will suddenly refuse to play any more, walk off the ground and go to the dressing-room. One has to go and talk them over before they will come out again. One can never guarantee that a match will end. Sometimes the referee will get offended and refuse to continue.

"Some of the nicknames of players I have had to deal with show the style of play that is liked. There is 'Lion,' and 'Bull,' and even one 'Hodja' (teacher)—I don't know why the last gets his name. Play gets very rough indeed at times.

FIVE MINUTES FOOTBALL.

VALUE OF QUICK BURST

(By "Saracen")

Recently in talking to a leading Scottish international about present day football he said: "Every team ought to have one inside forward who has a quick burst to take the ball through in the penalty area and is better if both of them have this qualification. He should also be big and strong enough to withstand a challenge."

There are few players who play in this style today. The last survivor I think is David Jack. One, however, who may wear his mantle is Luke, the young Huddersfield inside forward, who I shall be surprised if he is not tried preparatory to the selection of the team to oppose Scotland.

Jack has been one of the greatest players of his time and worth every penny of the £10,000 he cost the Arsenal. First of all he was a complete contrast to James, one going up to take a hand in the scoring and the other lying back to create the openings.

Jack possessed every attribute of the inside forward. His ball play was splendid. He collected a pass with a sure touch and brought the ball under control to move forward at wonderful speed. There have been players who could give him a start in a hundred yards' sprint but none who could equal him in getting off the mark and for the first ten or fifteen yards.

SCOTTISH FAILING.

At Huddersfield they say that Luke for ten yards is like a streak of lightning and this trait alone will make him outstanding among a lot of very ordinary inside forwards.

"Scottish authorities and players have always had a high admiration for Jack. Once on the eve of a match with England an Anglo in the Scottish side was asked to describe him and he said: 'He is one of us, but he moves straighter and faster.'"

I have always thought that the Scottish forward would be a more dangerous player if he acquired the burst of a Jack. Having beaten an opponent, however, he is inclined instantly to slow down as if to give himself time in which to decide what to do next. He does not get away quickly with the ball; indeed he is often in danger of allowing the man he has beaten to recover and come again and make a second attempt to tackle.

The Scotsman's hesitation also gives the defence a few seconds grace in which to consolidate their positions whereas if the ball is taken forward quickly they are more likely to be kept on the run.

The forward too should try and get out of the habit of playing at one speed. Even by speeding up for a few strides he may avoid a tackle and at the same time introduce an element of surprise.

"They have some queer rules of their own. Charging is not allowed, and yet there is any amount of deliberate kicking of one another. The goalkeeper is not permitted to be touched when he has the ball. He may bounce it about up and down, and no one may go for him. Nevertheless some goalkeepers are padded at the shoulders and knees.

A BOUQUET.

"Matches begin with the presentation of a bouquet and the club flag between the teams, handshakes and club 'cries' like the American ones. They sometimes end with players and spectators joining in a general melee.

"Sometimes a player will say to me, 'Mister, I can't play any more!' or 'Mister, they are calling me an Arab' (this was a rather dark-skinned player).

"The cleverness and speed of Turkish players, however, added to the English-style teaching I am giving them, will, I think, make them into great players. They are certainly 300 per cent. better than when I first saw them on the Continent five years ago.

"Even in the six months since I have been training the Galata Serai Club—once the champion club of Turkey, but when I came right down, dispirited and divided I have got it up to the point of losing by one goal only against the present champions in the first league match we have played."

"HE'S CLEVER!"

"It is extraordinary how keen they are on English football. They follow all the League matches in the papers and know all the principal players by name.

"Their chief defect is that they won't shoot. They are all out for exhibition. 'He's clever, he's clever, six men!' and that sort of thing. They are extremely fast, but they never take a chance or shoot from a distance. It is still almost impossible for them to kick a ball the first time. They have to stop it, and then kick.

"It is expected that a Turkish national team will enter for the world cup' next year, and I am being asked to coach it. Its first match will be against Egypt.

"But I shall have to teach the forwards not to shout to the opposing goalkeeper, 'You're not going to save this!' and when he doesn't save it, go and shake hands with him!

"When the Turks learn more self-control in the game and know and obey the rules better, there is no doubt that they will form first-rate teams. Association football is the one national sport they are really interested in."

INTER-HONG SOCCER WON BY JARDINES

COLD SHOWERS AFTER THE GAME!

B. & S. OUTPLAYED

Enjoying the assistance of three local league players, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., easily defeated Messrs. Butterfield and Swire in the first Inter-Hong football match played between these business houses for something like ten years, when they met on the Club ground yesterday.

Jardine's netted five times without reply, a depleted B. and S. team being further weakened through the absence of Campbell. What the teams lacked in football technique and finesse, they balanced by keenness, and the game was most enjoyable from every viewpoint. The Jardines forward line was often responsible for some neat movements, Hill's league experience greatly assisting in keeping the attack together. Four of the five forwards scored goals, the other that coming from Manning Ralton, who came up from back to convert a penalty.

CHAMPION JOCKEY SCORES.

Jardines were three to the good at the interval, Leo Frost proving that being champion jockey did not mean that his sporting prowess was confined to the turf, by netting the first. White and Hill added further goals before half time.

The B. and S. forwards were rarely in evidence, and their rushes, although determined, were easily repulsed by the vigilant Jardines defence.

BRRGH!!

The keen and lively exchanges evidently caused a severe circulation of the blood among the players, for report has it that after the match they all took cold showers! This is, in itself, a feat unparalleled in local football.

The teams were:—
Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co.—Nichols, Urquhart and M. Ralton; Chadderton, Punccheon and Dinneen; Butler, Hill, Frost, White and Duncan.

Messrs. Butterfield and Swire—Lawrie, Cusickton and Hinton; McIntosh, Crawford and Knowles; Campbell, Williamson, Johnson, Cowie and Elliott.

All-Japan Rugby Championship

WASEDA DIVIDES HONOURS

Doshisha put up a great performance in Tokyo recently when they drew eight points each with Waseda, champions of the Tokyo Rugby League. The match was for the national championship, but at the end of a strenuous battle the Kwanto and Kwansai champions had each preserved their unbeaten records.

The result was a surprise. Waseda being generally expected to win, but the Kwansai side played a truly great game in the first half—when Waseda scored a goal and a try—and then had their turn after the interval, drawing level through a penalty goal and a goal. Waseda got their first try in 16 minutes, after having the worst of it in midfield. Komehara getting over after a fine back movement. Yagami scored it, and then for a time it seemed that Waseda would win their rivals. However, the Doshisha defence held out until the 26th minute, when Yamamoto sent Nozami over. This try was not converted.

In the fifteenth minute of the second half Hashimoto kicked a penalty goal for Doshisha. Watanabe had been off-side and four minutes later Naito got over. There was tremendous excitement when Hashimoto added the extra points. Both defences were equal to the occasion, and there was no further scoring.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

Club "A" to Meet Naval Combination

The rugby section of the Hongkong Football Club are fielding an "A" team this afternoon to oppose H.M.S. Cumberland and H.M.S. Tamar in a friendly match at Happy Valley at 4.45 p.m.

The Club team will include several players who figured in the senior fifteen on Saturday when the Club were beaten by the Combined Services by 19 points to three.

J. P. Whitham, G. P. Lammert and J. J. Ferguson who were absent on Saturday have not been included for this afternoon's match.

The Club line-up will be as follows:—

FAVOURITES BEATEN

SMART WIN BY NO. 1 PLATOON

TWO CORNERS WIN GAME

The No. 1 Group, favourites for the Six-a-Side football tournament of the South Wales Borderers, were unexpectedly beaten by the No. 1 Platoon when they met in the final at the W. Camp on Monday. The Platoon scored a goal and two corners, to which the Group added with a goal through Mullane, the Battalion right back.

The Group enjoyed the luck of the toss and elected to play with the slight wind behind them, but the advantage was quickly set at naught by the Platoon, who assumed an ascendancy from the start which was never seriously threatened.

The Group were constantly on the defensive in the first half, and at the interval the Platoon led by a corner to nil.

The losers brightened up considerably after the change over, but their attacks were easily repelled, and play swung to the other end, where Fortey, Battalion centre-forward, broke through to net, and a little later forced a corner.

The Group's solitary goal was delayed until a few minutes from the end, when Mullane made his way through the defence to beat the goalkeeper.

The Platoon thus won by two corners after a most praiseworthy display.

The teams were:
No. 1 Platoon:—Pte. Morrison, Pte. Owens, L/Cpl. Herbert, L/Cpl. Andrews, L/Cpl. Smith and Pte. Fortey.

No. 1 Group:—L/Cpl. Mullane, Pte. Greedy, Pte. Lemin, L/Cpl. Howitt, Pte. Hayes and Pte. Hopps.

Follows:—W. H. B. Rigg; K. Noble, J. A. R. Seiby (Capt.), R. H. Griffiths and A. D. Lawson; J. Hutchison and R. C. Meeko; R. O. F. King, R. G. Castleton, S. H. Garrod, W. O'Neil, W. R. Andrews, A. R. Cox, J. McGowan and K. A. Munro.

Commander Cowley Thomas, R.N., will referee.

SPORTING BATTALION FOR HONGKONG

Royal Welch Fusiliers Due Here Next

Rich in sporting talent, the 2nd Royal Welch Fusiliers, which is next Battalion for Hongkong, is bound to figure prominently in all branches of local sport.

The Battalion plays football in both codes, and has been in the final of the Army Association Cup. In boxing, some Army and open champions have been produced in Willis, Jones, Pritchard, Rawlins and others.

Lieut. Martin was a champion quarter-miler, and there was Lieut. Lloyd and other athletes of post-war years who kept and keep the flag flying.

The Royal Welch Fusiliers has its marksmen in the Army shoots, of whom one recalls Col. Sir R. Colleton.

WON FAME IN CHINA.

With Hongkong as its next station the R.W.F., which bears the Red Dragon, returns to the scene of former exploits, as it was in 1898, 1899 and 1900, including the Boxer Rebellion operations of the latter year. It was at the relief of Peking and Tientsin, and "Peking" is a scroll borne on the Colours.

Among other memorable engagements which figure in the annals of the 23rd Foot are the defence of Minorca, Sevastopol and Frederickstad, together with the relief of Peking, Tientsin, Lucknow, Ladysmith and Kut.

STILL SUPREME

BOBBY JONES DOES 8 UNDER PAR ROUND

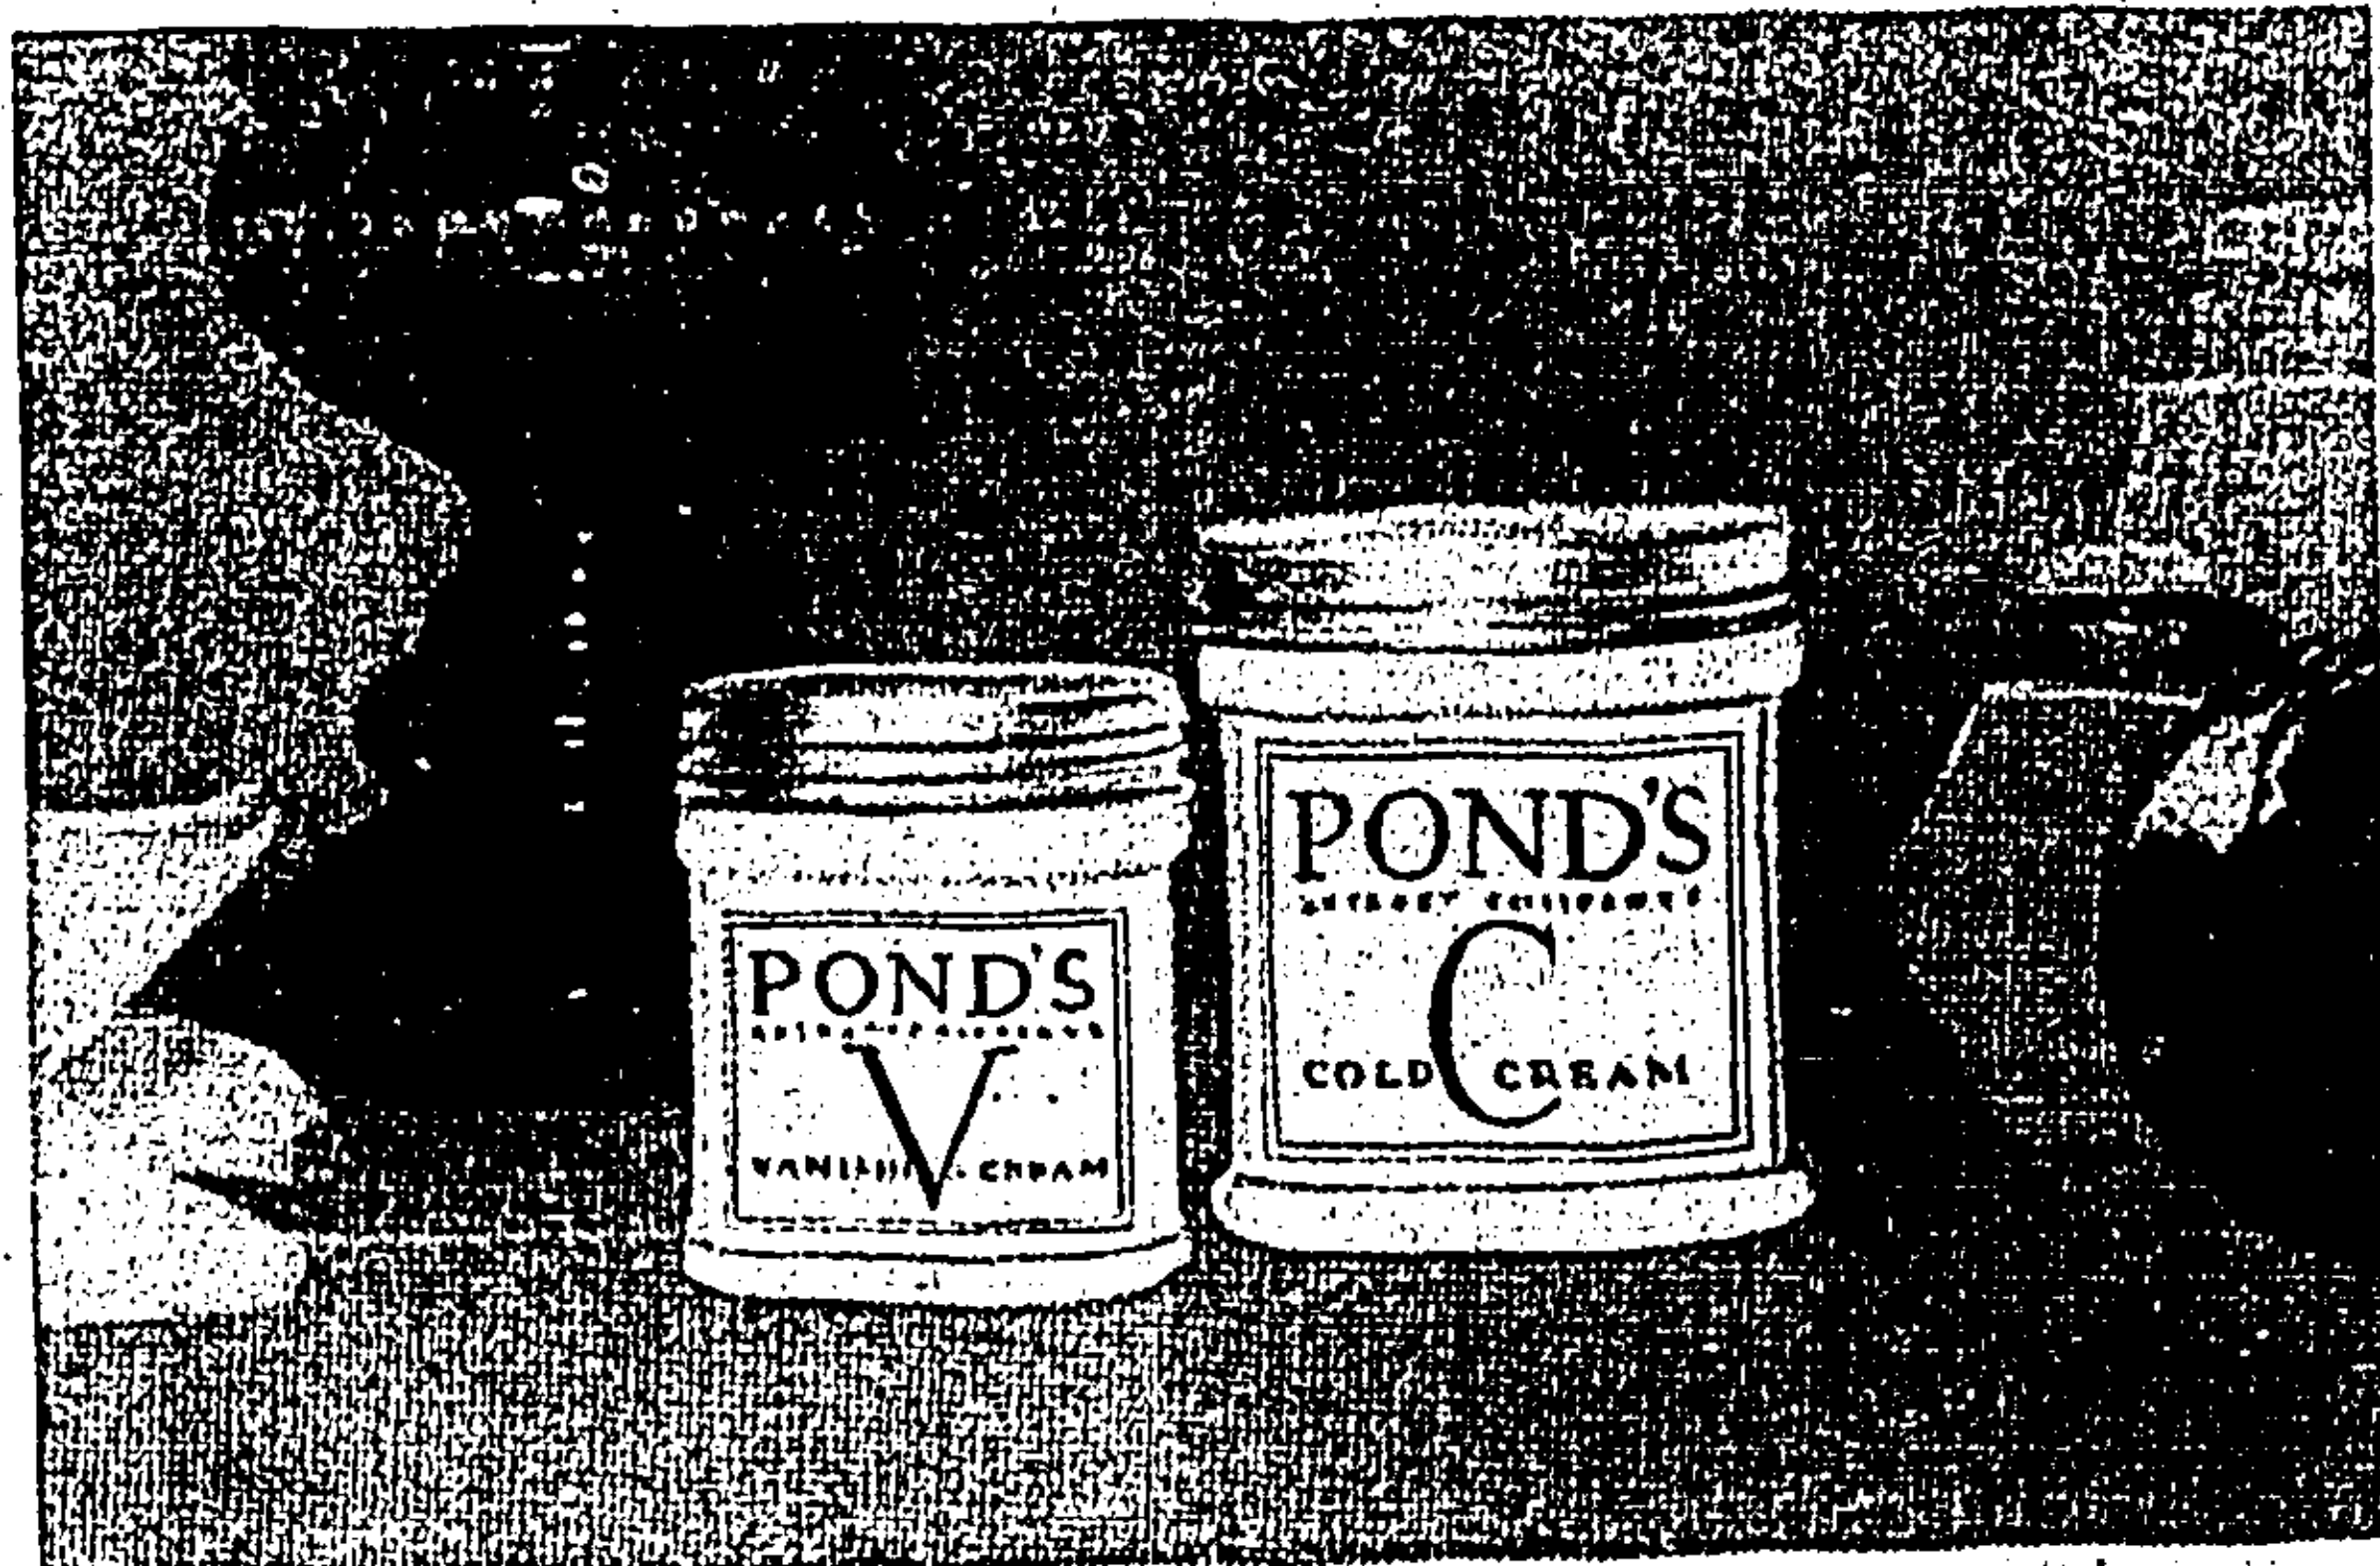

New York. Bobby Jones continues to play the most amazing golf, and absence from serious competition for three years does not seem in the least to have affected his game.

Playing over his home course at the East Lake Club he went round this championship course in 64—eight under par.

He should have broken his own course record of 63, as he reached the eighteenth green in 61. "Calamity Jane," his famous putter, failed him, however, and he required three puts for his 64.

A PEACH-BLOOM SKIN

in spite of exposure - - - - is yours if you guard it this way.

Pond's Cold Cream cleanses immaculately. Pond's Vanishing Cream protects and is a perfect powder base.

A peach-bloom skin . . . dainty fresh . . . velvety soft . . . invitingly cool . . . exquisitely clear and fine of texture . . . youthfully smooth, firm, supple . . . this is the gift Pond's brings to you! You know that your skin must be especially guarded in hot countries; scorching sun and drying dust are dangerous to beauty—Yet you can golf, ride, travel; happy in the satisfaction of knowing your skin will not suffer from the effects of exposure if you give it this special care. For you need not have a dried out, coarsened complexion with Pond's Two famous Creams to aid you. So, to give your skin the scrupulous attention it needs in a trying climate, follow this way regularly:

Spread Pond's Cold Cream generously over face and neck. Smooth in with gentle upward, outward strokes. The fine oils search out dirt from the roots of the pores, and soothe that taut feeling after exposure. Wipe off Cream and dirt. Apply more Cream. Remove. Now your skin is thoroughly cleansed and refreshed. Always do this at bedtime, and leave on a little Cream overnight to keep the skin supple and restore the natural oils dried out by sun and wind. After each daytime cleansing, apply a bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream to soothe, protect, and for a powder base. Don't forget to rub some into your hands! Follow the Pond's way faithfully, and a peach-bloom skin is yours!

Englishwoman to Drive for Britain in Classic Event

London. Great Britain will be represented again this year in the Italian Mille Miglia with a team of M. G. Magnettes, twelve horse-power motor cars. This thousand-mile road race around Italy is considered to be the world's most dangerous race.

As a sporting gesture and for the sake of Great Britain's prestige on the Continent, Sir William Morris is financing the venture.

The team will be under the leadership of Lord Howe as last year and the same cars will be driven. The drivers will be E. R. Hall and Mrs. Hall, Lord Howe, Count Lurani and C. Penn Hughes and, presumably, another.

Thus for the first time there will be a woman competitor in the Mille Miglia—an English woman.

M. G.'S SWEEPING SUCCESS.

Last April these Magnettes scored a sweeping success in the light car class in this classic race. G.E.T. Eyston with Count Lurani were first, and Lord Howe with H. G. Hamilton gained second place. Afterwards, Lord Howe described the affair as the most gruelling test to which any car could be put.

The race is over a thousand-mile course starting from Brescia in the north and running southwards via Bologna and Florence to Rome. The return course, making a figure of eight, passes through Perugia, Ancona and Padua back to Brescia.

AUSTRIANS NEED TEACHING

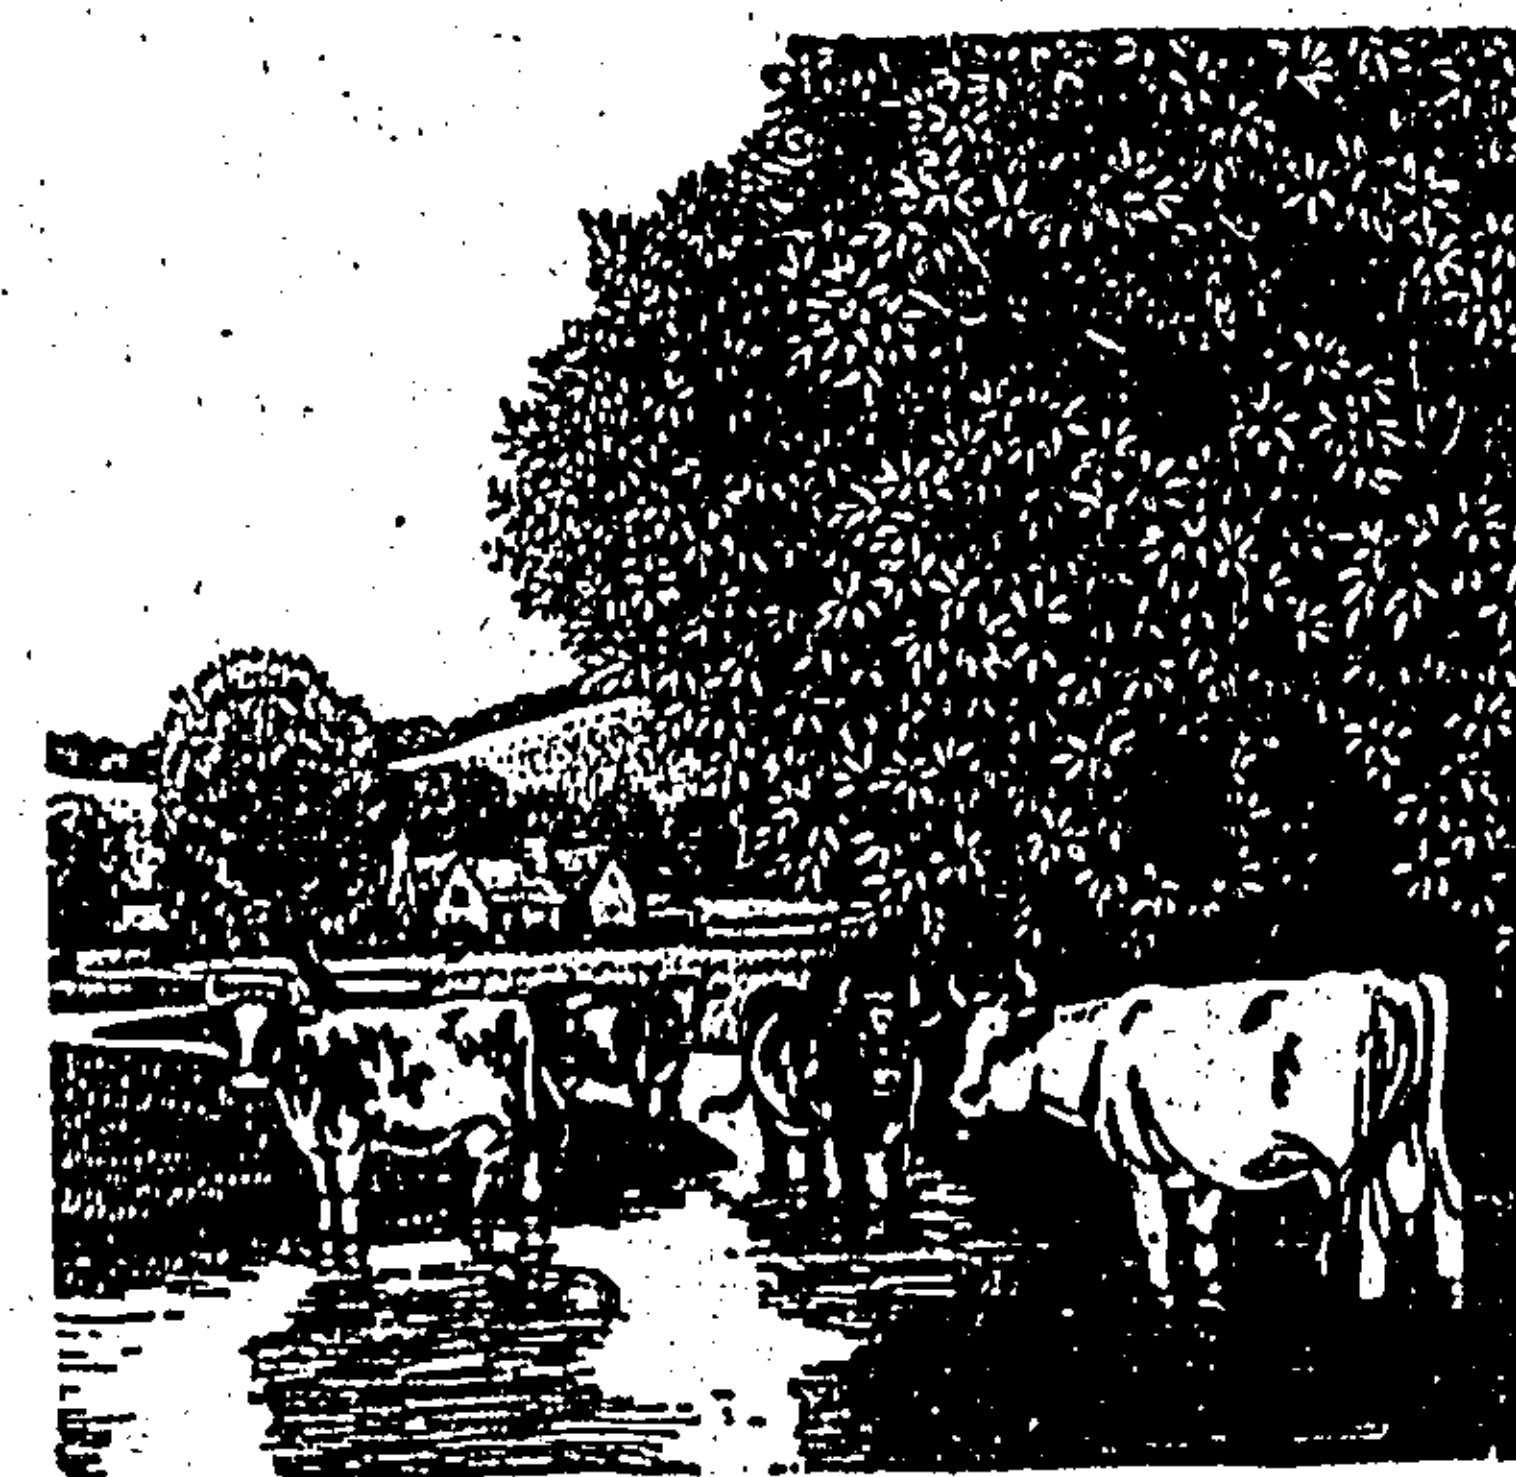

Must Learn to Shoot to Play Better Soccer

London. How to shoot is the chief lesson to be learnt by the Austrians. That is evident from the matches they have played in England, and particularly in the match between Austria F. C. and Manchester City, which the Mancunians won by 3-0.

This has led to Hugo Meisl, captain-manager of the Austrian international team, being attacked.

ON AN ENGLISH FARM

In various parts of England—farming districts famed throughout the world for their excellent pasturage—are situated the Nestlé condenseries.

Here your "Ideal" Milk is prepared under the most perfect conditions. Only the purest and richest milk is used, and, being prepared by a special process, all the cream is retained. Unlimited are its uses. In the kitchen "Ideal" Milk is indispensable, giving to your dishes a distinctive and creamy richness. It's British too.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract
Problem

Don't think just because you have a winning trick in your hand, that it always is safe to cash
it. In to-day's hand the declarer throws West in the lead, granting him a good trick and leaving him
with another good trick.

Before cashing that good trick,
West should stop to reason why
South has let him in to make those two tricks. Of course, the answer is that South, the declarer, wishes to get a squeeze on the East player and has no squeeze card of his own; so he deliberately throws
West in the lead, in an endeavour to get him to squeeze his own partner.

The bidding is normal and West's natural lead is the eight of spades.
A small spade is played from dummy and East wins the trick with the king.

He returns the deuce of spades,
West wins with the ace and returns
the ten of spades. A club is dis-

3 N. T. Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

carded from dummy, East discards
a club, and South wins the trick
with the jack.

South cashes the ace of hearts
and then leads the eight of hearts,
West's queen dropping. Dummy wins the trick with the king. A small diamond is led, East playing the ten, and declarer finessing the queen which holds the trick.

The drop of the queen of hearts
by West marks East with four hearts. The fact that he went up on the diamond marks him with probably the king and jack of diamonds. It looks as though it is impossible to make the contract.
But South, the declarer, decides to try to squeeze East; so he leads the seven of spades, which West wins with the nine, a small club being discarded from dummy. East has to drop the eight of diamonds.

If West makes the mistake of cashing his six of spades, which,
of course, is a good card, a small diamond will be discarded from dummy and East will be squeezed.
If he lets go a heart, both hearts in dummy will be good, while if he lets go a diamond or a club, those cards will be good in the declarer's hand.

Whichever cards East releases,
the declarer will squeeze him in that suit, and the contract of three no trump will be made. This play is known as the suicide squeeze.

Today's Contract Problem

While the natural contract,
here, is three no trump by South, which can be made easily, one pair bid four spades and made it—an interesting play. Can you make four spades against the best defense?

ANNUAL REPORT RECALLS HAPPY FUNCTIONS

The third annual report of the Society of Yorkshiresmen in Hongkong states that the membership on October 31, 1933, was as follows:—Life members 30; annual members 118.

The Committee records with much regret the deaths of two members during the year, Mrs. T.
Holmes and Capt. C. L. Cutsforth.
R.N.R.

The report continues: Our annual cabaret dinner dance was held on March 3, at Hongkong Hotel, when the President, Mr. J.
Scott Harston, took the chair. The patron of the Society, H. E. Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., accompanied by Lady Peel, again honoured us by attending, whilst amongst the guests were the President of St. George's Society and Mrs. Dowbiggin, the Chief of St. Andrew's Society and Mrs.
Grieg, the president of St.
Patrick's Society and Mrs. Redmond and Mr. R. R. Davies, President of St. David's Society.

Some 200 people attended and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent by all. As usual, guests assembled in "Bootham Bar" for hors d'oeuvres, dinner being served in the Roof Garden. Our President's speech followed, and in proposing the health of the Society he touched humorously upon the instinctive belief of the Yorkshireman that in cricket, as in other things, he is supreme. His speech being punctuated by loud laughter and applause, H. E. the Governor, Sir
Wm. Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., proposed the toast of His Majesty the King.

The cabaret programme was again very successful, items being given Mrs. Joan Tetley and Mr. J.
Scott Harston, our genial President obliging with two humorous songs in his own inimitable style.
"Ikla Moor" was rendered by

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

VOTES TOTALLING $101,480 APPROVED

Votes totalling $101,480 were approved by the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council yesterday afternoon. The biggest item on the agenda was one for $89,700 which will be used to resume Island Lot 754 at Pokfulam, where it is proposed to build a Public Health Centre.

The Colonial Secretary (Hon.
Sir Thomas Southorn, K.B.E., C.M.G.) presided and others present were the Colonial Treasurer
(Hon. Mr. M. J. Breen), the Director of Public Works (Hon.
Mr. R. M. Henderson), the Hon.
Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., the Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie, the Hon.
Mr. J. P. Bragg, the Hon. Dr. S. W.
Mr. O. B. E., the Hon. Mr. J. J.
Ferguson, the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, and Mr. R. A. C. North, Deputy Clerk of Councils.

Messrs. A. R. Brown, J. H. Shaw,
W. Stoker and C. Jackson, the company joining heartily in the refrain.

On July 29, members of the Society were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. Scott Harston at a garden party at their residence at Magazine Gap. Notwithstanding the typhoon which threatened on that day, we had a very fine attendance, and we were again honoured by the presence of His Excellency and Lady Peel.

Through the good offices of Mr.
H. H. Priestley, the Society was entertained by the British Film Distribution Co., Ltd. to a performance of "The Good Companions" at the King's Theatre, on October 7.

The annual general meeting will be held in the Chartered Bank Chambers, second floor, on Friday next, at 5.30 p.m.

DOLLAR DANGER

ANGLO-AMERICAN PACT RUMOUR

London, Jan. 23.
America appears to fear the appreciation of the dollar beyond an economically desirable level.
Of the unusually large amount of gold, $1,360,000, offered to-day on the London open market, a considerable portion is believed to have been taken by America.

The continued steadiness of the American dollar has given further rise to rumours of a possible
Anglo-American stabilisation agreement, but the suggestion is not taken seriously in the highest financial quarters here, which point out that the aims of the two exchange equalisation funds are diametrically opposed.

The Financial Times believes the American authorities are buying sterling over and above the amount required for gold purchases and points out the accumulation of a foreign currency reserve is the only way to prevent the appreciation of the dollar.

The American trade balance would be favourably affected by the depreciation of the dollar during the next six months, the repatriation of American capital and foreign buying of American securities would not be in a position to neutralise the movement by buying a sufficient amount of gold, especially as the Bank of France is not likely to allow wholesale withdrawals of gold to non-gold standard countries.

It is pointed out that the only way to discourage a flight to the dollar would be through the further raising of the gold price.
But it is doubtful whether the authorities would embark on such a policy on the eve of big government operations.—Reuter.

BRITISH NAVAL STRATEGY IN THE FAR EAST

DESTROYER TRAGEDY

NAVAL OFFICER FOUND SHOT

INDICATIONS OF SUICIDE

Strict secrecy is being preserved by the naval authorities for the present, concerning a tragedy aboard the destroyer, H.M.S. Verity, which occurred last night.

It is understood that investigations made on board after the firing of a shot had been heard revealed the dead body of Sub-Lieutenant D. B. Gillespie, the most junior officer on the ship.

Report has it that the death was due to suicide, but no information is yet available from authoritative quarters.

It is understood that H.M.S. Verity was returning to Hongkong when the shooting occurred. She is now lying alongside the wall at the Dockyard.

INVESTIGATION PROCEEDING.
An official inquiry is believed to be proceeding into the affair.

Sub-Lieutenant Gillespie, who was promoted to his rank in 1932, joined the Verity on the China Station in February last year.

The funeral is taking place tomorrow morning, leaving the Naval Hospital at Vanchai at ten o'clock.

SHOT IN HEAD.
Later, it is learned that Lieutenant Gillespie was found with a gunshot wound in the head, the shooting occurring while H.M.S. Verity was engaged in a piracy patrol at Bias Bay.

The destroyer came into port with the body and to report on the incident.

A naval inquiry is being held on board H.M.S. Koppal this afternoon, the presiding officer being Captain C.M.G. Benson, D.S.O., of H.M.S. Cumberland.

The naval authorities decline to disclose further information.

RUSSIAN OIL FOR R.A.F.

CHEAPNESS THE DECIDING FACTOR

London, Jan. 23. The Air Ministry is increasing the percentage of the Russian basis to the lubricating oil used in the Royal Air Force.

Big contracts have been placed for supplies for home and overseas stations.

It is explained that the only alternative to Russian is a Persian or American basis, and cheapness has been the deciding factor.—Reuter.

A TWO-DAY MANHUNT

GERMAN GUNMEN BROUGHT TO BAY

BOTH COMMIT SUICIDE

Basle, Jan. 22. Committing suicide in a public park here this morning, the two German gunmen wanted for the slaying of two bank officials and two policemen ended a two-day search, in which 400 armed police, frontier guards, police-dogs and airmen had combed the rugged country between the River Rhine and the French border.

It appears that, at about the time they killed the bank officials, the miscreants met two girls, who they met at the mouth of a river. After the murder, the photographs came into the possession of the police, who, on making impounded them to be photographing-house.

As detectives were entering the house, the two Germans opened fire, killing one of them and inflicting injuries upon another from which he subsequently died.

The desperadoes then managed to make their escape. Stealing a couple of bicycles, they pedalled into the woods thirty miles away, where they were chased by the police. They managed to elude their pursuers and made their way to a public park, where they were finally surrounded. Facing arrest, they shot themselves.

During their career of crime, the miscreants had killed six policemen and had indirectly caused a Basle policeman to kill an innocent civilian.—Reuter.

AUSTRIA TO FIGHT TERRORISM

VIENNA AUDIENCE STIRRED

Vienna, Jan. 23. Another fighting speech was delivered to-night by the Chancellor, Dr. Dollfuss, expressing the Government's determination to fight the Nazis with every weapon at their command.

He declared that Austria's patience and forbearance had reached the breaking-point; hence, in fact, ended, they were not going to put up with terrorism any longer.

Austria, as a united nation was determined to assert itself and to crush terrorism within its own borders, while regarding terrorism from abroad, the Chancellor confirmed that he is considering lodging an appeal to the League of Nations if Germany does not give the assurances demanded to prevent the flood of propaganda, weapons and money from crossing the Austrian border.

Dr. Dollfuss has addressed an enormous crowd consisting of thousands of members of the new Patriotic Front, who were whipped up to a fever of enthusiasm by the speech of the Chancellor.—Reuter.

INDUSTRIALISING IRELAND

GOVERNMENT PLANS ANNOUNCED

Dublin, Jan. 24. The industrialisation of the Irish Free State was the subject of an important speech by Mr. Lemass, the Minister of Industry and Commerce, at Dublin last night.

He said that the Government hoped, within twelve months, that the full requirements of cotton piece goods in Ireland would be woven in the Free State from yarn spun in the Free State.

Other plans by the Government for the coming year provided for the re-establishment of a number of industries, including glassware, cutlery, rubber goods, tyres, boots and shoes, and pottery.—Reuter.

WAR IN PACIFIC

M. Herriot on Highly Dangerous Outlook

Paris, Jan. 22. Existing Soviet-Japanese and American-Japanese tension threaten to provide the basis for a terrific three-cornered conflict in the Far East, writes the ex-Premier, M. Edouard Herriot, in an article released to-day by the Economic and Financial Agency.

M. Herriot regards the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway as the immediate pivot upon which the question of war or peace in the Pacific revolves.

Entitled "The Triptych," the article refers to the trio of great powers whose interests and policies are tangled in a dangerous fashion in the Far East at the present time. It opens with lengthy citations from the recent (Continued on Page 11.)

THE SINGAPORE PARLEY

GROWING IMPORTANCE ATTACHED

TIME COME FOR CLOSE STUDY

London, Jan. 24. The attention which the Singapore Naval Conference has attracted shows the growing importance attached to the problems of Empire policy in the seas of the Far East and the Pacific, states the Daily Telegraph in a leading article this morning.

The journal adds that the conditions created by the forward policies of the United States and Japan need not necessarily be injurious to the interests of the British Empire, but it is clear that the time has come for the careful reconsideration of what is essential at Singapore to Imperial defence.

Admiral Sir Frederic Dreyer, commander-in-chief of the China Squadron, is presiding at the Singapore conference, where the chiefs of the naval forces of the New Zealand and Australia and the East Indian Squadron are attending.

STRATEGY OVERHAUL.
The Admiralty declares the Conference to be a mere routine matter, but it is reported that Imperial naval strategy in Eastern and Pacific waters is likely to undergo a thorough overhaul.

Meanwhile a report from Washington says that steel shares have risen sharply on news of favourable legislative action on the Vinson Bill, which provides for the building of 120 new warships for the United States Navy.—Reuter.

APARTMENT HOUSE TRAGEDY

Judge Purdy Awaiting Report of Affair

Shanghai, Jan. 23. Though it is probable that no inquest will be held, Judge Milford D. Purdy is waiting for the full report of Dr. George Sellett, U.S. District Attorney, on the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. William Groch and her two sons, which shocked Shanghai last Friday.

The bodies of the mother and her children were found on the concrete below the Washington Apartments late Friday evening, after they had hurried through the air from the eight storey roof-garden.

Both French and U.S. Consular authorities have been at work on the case since Friday. A private funeral was held on Saturday afternoon.

JAPAN'S DESIGNS ON THE MAINLAND

General Araki Still A Big Factor

Tokyo, Jan. 24. It is believed that the real motive that caused General Araki to tender his resignation from the War Office when the establishment of a monarchical regime in Manchuria is approaching, is to prevent international attention from being focussed on his designs on the Asiatic Continent and, in dealing with domestic politics, to evade attacks from the Opposition in the Diet, particularly with regard to military expenditures.

Observers are of the opinion that the youthful new War Minister, General Senjuro Hayashi, who can be regarded as General Araki's retainer, will not deviate from his predecessor's positive policies.

General Araki, though in retirement, will probably not be less active behind the scenes.—Central News.

JAPANESE TRADE PENETRATION IN MACAO

MONOPOLY SENSATION

STRONG CHINESE PROTESTS

PETITION TO BE SENT TO LISBON

Japanese trade penetration in a form viewed as amazing by persons who profess to have checked the facts, has been brought home to the people of Macao by a sensational, and apparently authentic report, that certain Japanese interests have secured from the Portuguese Government a virtual monopoly of the wine trade.

An agreement implementing provisions for the importation of molasses and alcohols as part of this monopoly is said to have been signed last month.

The Chinese wine industry of Macao is one that may be regarded as its most important. Industry, apart from the fishing industry, and if the facts are as have been disclosed to the Telegraph, important developments of a political and international character may be expected on the lines of a spirited protest that is being prepared by the local Chinese wine trade.

A FOOTING.
They see in the move the successful culmination of years of Japanese efforts to secure a footing for their raw materials in South China.

It all started, it is said, in a report featured by a Hongkong Japanese newspaper, the Hongkong Japanese Daily Press. In its issue of December 22, an announcement was made to the effect that a Mr. Wada, a Japanese dentist at Macao, had succeeded in "obtaining various franchises from the Treasury of Macao, amongst these the right of importing alcohol and fermenting or making Chinese wines," the total amount of these alcoholic spirits to be roughly between 60,000 and 100,000 cases yearly.

A certain sum is also named in the newspaper report as having been fixed as payment for these franchises.

The rest of the article continues in an optimistic strain to envisage when it will have been possible for Japanese business to be further developed with the assistance of other franchisees.

FORMER ATTEMPT

An alarming view was then taken of the possibilities by Chinese wine manufacturers and retailers who see in the monopoly an insidious attempt to slash away their business. They recall that some years ago the same Mr. Wada had established a competitive concern to which he gave the name of Nam Wah at Macao, but was eventually forced to retire owing to strong Chinese opposition. What the Chinese merchants were then able to achieve, they claim, with the sympathetic support of the Macao Government, is not now possible, since that sympathetic support has been taken away, and in its place has been introduced an "active assistance" for the Japanese.

GOVERNMENT ACTION

It is regarded by the Chinese merchants as highly significant that on December 30, a week after the reported Government deal, there should come into effect a law by which the Government transfers to itself the whole of the wine trade as a monopoly; that is the right of buying the raw materials from whom and in what quantity it wishes; establishing its own factories and operating them with what personnel it desires, and (Continued on Page 7.)

NEW NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

PREMIER CHEERED AND BOOED AT LEEDS

London, Jan. 23. The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, had a most uncomfortable meeting at Leeds to-night when inaugurating the official National Government campaign to restore confidence in the present Ministry.

The campaign is the Government's response to the shocks provided in recent by-elections, disclosing everywhere a sharp slump in National Government support. It meets the complaint that nothing has been done to meet the steady campaigning of the opposition in the country.

The Premier was not, however, well received. Cheers went up on his appearance, but they were accompanied by booing and catcalls, and Mr. MacDonald was repeatedly interrupted.

In the course of his address, the Premier ranged over a wide field. He referred to the Anglo-French tariff negotiations and expressed the opinion that France's latest proposal was very unjust to British industry. He believed that the French would also come to think so.

TRADE BARRIERS

The Government, he added, was ready to stop in and take up the work of getting government to come to agreements to remove unnecessary trade barriers as soon as circumstances made a satisfactory conclusion likely.

He reaffirmed that the Government was loyal to the League of Nations and backed in co-operation with other nations, like Italy and France, and the smaller Powers, to devise a means to make the League more secure than ever to face the problems confronting them.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

You'll enjoy your leisure in style if you wear the smart pyjamas that the Chic twins sport here. Crepe in red and black is the material. The design is in four sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20, with corresponding bust measures of 33 1-2, 35, 36 1-2 and 38. Size 18 requires 4 5-8 yards of 39 inch material. If made of contrasting material, the upper part of the waist with the hood requires 1 7-8 yards and the trousers (cut bias) with the lower waist requires 2 7-8 yards.

"COME TO DINNER"

The Gentle Art of Entertaining

There are many people who deny themselves the pleasures of entertaining their friends because they do not have a large house and a staff of well-trained servants. But in these days such limitations do not matter. A clever woman can be a successful hostess even without servants at all.

The most important proviso for this kind of entertaining is not to be ambitious. There is nothing so uncomfortable for herself or her guests as the hostess who is all the time worried about what is happening in the kitchen. She cannot enter into the conversation with more than a quarter of her attention, and the automatic smile that she may manage to produce is merely pathetic when you know that every nerve is strained to catch the sounds (and smells) that come from the cooking department!

She is so busy getting you through the meal, and watching the servants, that it is a relief when the evening is at an end. The guests know that the only thought of the givers of the banquet is to get it over as soon as possible, and here is no feeling of enjoyment or ease.

The only way to enjoy entertaining one's friends to a meal is to choose, first of all, an absolutely fool-proof menu, and one that can be prepared beforehand so that you know it will take care of itself and you can devote your attention completely to the company of your guests. Then explain the inadequacy of your staff and tell them to make the best of it.

It doesn't matter so vitally if there are longish waits between courses, provided you make a joke about it and go on talking instead of sitting in strained silence with eyes glued on the door through which the food should appear. It doesn't matter if your cook does make a mistake and hand from the right side now and again. And the world won't come to an end if the crust and crumbs are not removed before the sweet is served. Many good dinners have been ruined because the hostess is so fidgety over small deficiencies in serving that her guest does not enjoy the quite excellent food she has provided for them. Nor is it any enjoyment to come to a house and find the hostess flustered and tired by the obvious exertions she has made to produce the dinner. Even if the meat is beyond reproach you can't enjoy it if the donor has obviously used up all her energy in preparing it, and has no animation left for her guests. It is far better to produce a simple meal like Irish stew and fruit salad and have the energy to enjoy the evening.

People don't, as a rule, mind what they have to eat so long as it is good of its kind, and served in restful conditions. The highest compliment you can pay your guests is to treat them naturally and with genuine friendship, and not try to impress them with a lot of show that is really beyond you.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

No wise woman leaves for room in the morning until she has given her complexion and hair the attention they deserve.

You should plan a morning schedule with regard to the least amount of time. Very few of us have more than 20 minutes or half an hour in the morning to devote to our appearance. Therefore, unless you map out a routine and follow it carefully, you're going to waste valuable time which otherwise could be devoted to improvement of your face, figure and hair.

After you have brushed your teeth, clean your face. Whether you use cleaning cream or soap and water, do a thorough job. Then slap on a little skin-toning lotion. Slap is the right word too. Always apply skin-lotions with real vigour.

Your foundation cream or lotion comes next, followed by the application of rouge. Remember that cream rouge blends easily if you get one of the new light, foamy varieties, and it stays on a long time.

Powder, a bit of lipstick and careful grooming and arranging of your hair are the last steps. The final step is your own satisfaction when you survey yourself in the mirror just before you go downstairs.

CHAPTER III

From Ring to Cabaret

The Professor, his eyes shining, got up suddenly amid the crowd's acclaim for the unknown fighter. "Young Gaffney broke through his tombstone to-night! My boy's come back to me!" He struggled through the mass of excited and still yelling humanity, after Steve who had stopped in the aisle to speak to a girl in evening wrap. The promoter tagged after him saying: "Now wait a minute, Professor."

"Come on," Steve was saying to the girl who was smiling up at him. They fought their way down the aisle. Steve took her into a little araway, in the tunnel to the dressing rooms and there turned to confront her. She held out her hand. "You're pretty good, Morgan."

"Good-bye."

He ignored the outstretched hand. I'll be dressed in three minutes. You wait and figure out what we'll do after."

Her hand was still extended. "There isn't going to be any after, Morgan. I've a taxi waiting."

He took her hand. "Good. I haven't ridden in a taxi in a long while."

She laughed, somewhat sadly, in spite of herself. "No, Morgan."

"You're sure?"

"I'm positive. It isn't in the cards, Morgan."

The girl flicked a drop of sweat from Steve's nose with a little handkerchief. "You go along and take your shower, Morgan. I'll look for you in the papers."

Steve took the handkerchief and grinned: "You're not going to get away from me like this!"

"I've gotten away from lots of things, Morgan. Good-bye." She hurried down the corridor with a semblance of flight in her gait. A fifteen-year-old boy stopped to look admiringly at Steve in passing.

"Hey, want to earn a dollar?" At the boy's eager nod, Steve said quickly: "Go find out what address that lady gives her taxi!"

"You betcha!" said the boy, and was off.

The Professor awaited him in the dressing room. He got up eagerly. "Stephen, my boy, I've gone back thirty years!"

"Sure you haven't gone back thirty drinks?" laughed Steve.

"I'm forgetting all that, boy, just as you must forget everything now that interferes with your career."

"So, I've got a career, have I?"

"You're a champion. You and I are going a long, brilliant path. But there's one thing we've got to settle right now—that female."

"Yeah," grunted Steve under the pressure of his handlers. "What Willie Ryan."

"She's not for you two reasons."

First, a woman around an up-and-coming young fighter is like a magnet in a beautiful red apple. And second, she belongs to the toughest character in this town—Willie Ryan."

"You mean Ryan, the trigger fella?" He chuckled at the Professor's nod. "No kidding?"

"I'm not inhuman, Stephen. I'll apportion your women when the time comes, just as I'm going to tell you what you're going to eat and what you're going to drink and how much you're going to sleep, and how and when you're going to train. That's all in my hands. And this girl is the first case. Is she out or isn't she?"

The boy he had sent to get the girl's address hung about the dressing room door. Steve, smelling the scent in the handkerchief in his closed fist, put a finger to his lips and nodded to the boy to wait outside.

"Okay, Professor, she's out," Steve smiled to himself. "But say, if you're going to apportion my life like that, how about apportioning me that sixty bucks?"

"It's here, Stephen. You'll have it when you're dressed. And remember—save your money. Later on I'll advise you about investments."

"Okay, Professor. Hurry it up, you boys, I'm tired and want to get out of here."

Willie Ryan, a comparatively young man neatly dressed in dinner coat, sat at the desk in his office at the cabaret of which he was the proprietor, a telephone receiver at his ear. Opposite him sat a weazened, gray-haired, jockey-type little man known as the Adopted Son, whose slate-blue eyes glittered as he listened.

"Yes, yes, I know she was there," Willie was saying. "But what was the fighter's name? . . . Morgan. Eh? Never heard of him. . . . That's all."

It hung up, stared at the wall and muttered: "Steve Morgan."

At his words the Adopted Son arose and looked at Willie as though awaiting orders. Willie shook his head slightly and said: "Don't be silly," as a boy entered to announce:

"Miss Ferber's here, sir. She's gone to her dressing room."

After a moment's thought, Willie arose and left his office, the Adopted Son following him. He knocked on the door of a particular dressing room.

"Come in, Willie," a voice called. When he had closed the door softly, she turned to him from her dressing table. "Hello, Mister. Did you think I had fallen down a drain?"

"Did you?" he asked, simply, staring straight into her eyes.

"Funny—just before I left to come over here a girl I knew in Cleveland."

She broke off and turned quickly to him again, laughing. "We both know that's a lot of hokey, don't we?"

Willie nodded and smiled. "Was it a good fight, Belle?"

"Pretty short," said Belle Ferber, and turned again quickly. "Look here, Mister, you haven't been having any of your bird dogs follow me, have you?"

"You know better than that. Just a couple of nosey boys who were there, and thought they'd get in strong if they told." He came close to her. "Since when this passion for palookas?"

"Since I drove into the ditch at dawn. . . . Let's forget it, Willie. He did me a favour and in return I went up to see him fight. And if there ever was a balloon-headed, fresh-lipped, puff-cheeked specimen, he's it."

"In other words—he's kind of in your hair?"

"Ummmm—well, I'm taking a shampoo when I get home to-night. Ryan took her arms and turned her about to face him. "I can't really kid about this!"

"What's gotten into you all of a sudden?"

"Willie, . . . Don't you ever look at a girl . . . and after she's gone, don't you think of her, just a little?"

"Not since you've given me the chance to think about you."

"I'm sorry. . . . This is getting a little nutty. How about taking your girl friend home to-night and continuing the discussion there?"

"All right." She patted his shoulder affectionately as he left to enter the cabaret. They made their way to a table where the Adopted Son sat with two middle-aged, sharp-looking men. The men stood up and Willie introduced them—Sid Munsey from Chicago and Georgio Lyons from Philadelphia. Belle threw a kind word to their towns, nodded at the Adopted Son, and sat down.

"You know," said Willie, "since I sold out my place in the champ, I've been looking for a new heavyweight to back. Belle's just been doing a little scouting for me. She sees a prospect and then loses interest in him while I—"

He broke off at the sound of an argument a short distance away. The headwaiter was barring the progress of a well-set up young man in a sack suit. "I'm sorry. It's a strict rule. You must be in a dinner coat."

"What for?" said the voice of Steve Morgan. "I don't want any dinner. Just a couple of drinks." He caught sight of Miss Ferber, saluted her with an easy smile. "Just put me in a corner anywhere."

Belle's eyes met those of Willie Ryan a little falteringly. "Why that's our old friend, Steve Morgan."

EMPIRE SETTLEMENT.

SCHEMES FOR DISTRIBUTION OF POPULATION

London, Jan. 23. A motion standing on the Order Paper of the House of Commons, with the support of 309 members, representing all parties, affirms that the time has arrived when active steps should be taken to consider schemes for distribution of the population of the Empire, and urging the Government to consult with the Dominions and Colonies with a view to the promotion of organized Empire settlement.

The Prime Minister is to be asked if he will grant a day for the discussion of this motion when Parliament reassembles next week. —British Wireless.

TRADE MARK ISSUE

FATSHAN FIRM'S APPLICATION

A Chinese firm of Fatshan, successfully applied to the Chief Justice this morning for an order expunging part of the trade mark of Poon Sui Cheong, of 289, Queen's Road Central.

Mr. R.H.C. Lim, instructed by Mr. D. L. Strollett of George K. Ertton & Co., represented Poon Mak-ching-yeo, widow, trading as Poon Sui Cheong, makers of tooth brushes, etc., at Fatshan, and asked for an order to expunge five characters from the trade mark used by the firm of the same name in Queen's Road Central.

Counsel agreed that this was not a case of the use of the mark but a case of trade description. Applicant's goods had been sold locally for over 30 years and respondents were trying to pass off their products as those of the Fatshan firm.

The application was granted, the respondents not being present or represented.

SHANGHAI FORGERY SENSATION

Employee of Bank Placed Under Arrest

Shanghai, Jan. 24.

A Chinese employee of the Chartered Bank has been arrested in connexion with the forgery of cheques for $130,000, drawn on the British-American Tobacco Company. In the meantime, the Russian named Ionin, who was arrested on January 20th, is still in custody after being charged with obtaining money by forgery.

The fact that the serial numbers of the forged cheques corresponded to those in the British-American Tobacco Company account led to the belief that an employee or employees of the Bank had aided, and the arrest to-day was a sequel. —Reuter.

H.K. TRAMWAYS PROFITS

FINAL DIVIDEND OF 85 CENTS

After covering finalised losses of subsidiary motor bus operation terminated within the year, and including all further charges to be made, and providing transfers of $150,000 to General Reserve Account, the Directors of Hongkong Tramways, Limited, will recommend at the forthcoming annual general meeting of the Company a final dividend of 85 cents per share (making a total dividend of $1.35 for the year 1933) leaving, subject to audit, a balance of $146,691.68 to be carried forward to the next account.

FATAL QUARREL SEQUEL

"WANTED" MAN ARRESTED

A fatal quarrel on November 14 last between two persons in the Fat Heung district of Au Tau, New Territories, has had a sequel in the arrest of the alleged wanted man, Tang Kang, which was effected by Divisional Inspector Hoare early yesterday morning.

Tang Kang, it is understood, will be charged with the manslaughter of Tang Chee, and will be dealt with by the Tai Po Court. It is recalled that the affair arose from Tang Chee remonstrating with the other man, Tang Kang, for striking a pig. He was struck in the chest with a stone, and this put an end to the fight. In the evening, Tang Chee complained of giddiness and shortly afterwards he relapsed into unconsciousness, remaining in that condition until he died.

LOCAL FACTORY FINED

WOMEN'S WORKING HOURS

A fine of $100 was imposed on the Manager of the Pacific Rubber Manufacturing, who was summoned before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for allowing women to work on the premises between 9 p.m. and 7 a.m. on January 10.

Defendant pleaded guilty, but stated that all the machines in the factory had already stopped when Inspector Elliot, of the S.C.A., got there. The women found on the premises had stayed behind to sort out some odds and ends.

DEMONSTRATION IN HARBIN

Reduction of C.E.R. Freight Rates

Harbin, Jan. 23.

A public demonstration to demand general freight rate reductions and use of Manchukuo currency instead of Russian money on the Chinese Eastern Railway will be staged here to-day by Harbin citizens and farmers.

Police will not prohibit the parade and demonstration although they will be prepared to prevent rioting and such disturbances as occurred a week ago when representatives of the Japanese-Manchukuo Economic Association visited M. Rudt the Soviet President of the C.E.R.

Mr. Li Haino-ken, Manchukuo President of the railway has issued a statement saying that Soviet officials of the C.E.R. will be held responsible for any incidents arising out of the demonstrations to-morrow. He said that Manchukuo officials have repeatedly urged reduction of carriage rates and use of Manchukuo money, but Soviet officials declined. —United Press.

LORD ABERCONWAY DEAD

Children's Faces
What They Tell.

Make a practice of studying the face of your child, for in this way you will learn much regarding the little one's general development, character, and thus be able to exert influence to help development of good and repression of undesirable tendencies.

You can also tell from a child's face the general condition of its health. For example, the thin, melancholy-looking, pallid, irritable infant almost invariably has something wrong with its digestion; its stomach and intestinal tract are not functioning properly, or it is afflicted with worms. The child's urgent need in such a case is best provided by Baby's Own Tablets.

The prescription of a doctor who for many years practiced as a children's specialist, Baby's Own Tablets, have earned a world-wide reputation as a specific for such troubles as infantile indigestion, constipation, colic, 'wind', and teething pains. They reduce fever, relieve cramp and colds, expel worms, quiet the nerves and promote health-giving sleep in a perfectly natural way.

No parent need have a moment's hesitation about administering these Tablets, for they are guaranteed to contain not the minutest particle of narcotic or other harmful drug, and to be equally good and helpful for the newly born infant as for the child six or seven years old. Any chemist can supply them.

JAPAN STANDS PAT

Taken at its face value, Mr. Hirota's speech in the Diet, outlining foreign policy, depicts Japan as a nation anxious to be on terms of friendship with everybody, animated by no ulterior motives whatever, and pledged to the ideal of universal brotherhood. The utterance is, in fact, full of pleasing platitudes, but with little that is concrete from which to deduce Japan's real aims and policies. Stripped of its verbiage, however, there is running through the declaration, thinly disguised enough it be, a plain intimation that nothing is to be allowed to interfere with Japan's plans for a hegemony of the Far East. "We should not forget," says Mr. Hirota, "that Japan serves as the only corner-stone for the edifice of the peace of Eastern Asia." In these words, he places his country in the self-appointed role of guardian of peace in the Far East and as the dominant factor in the situation. The impression is left that Japan envisages the peace of the East as a Japanese-controlled peace—peace for everybody so long as Japan is permitted to dictate the terms. It is not without significance in this connection that Mr. Hirota admits that Japan decided to withdraw from the League of Nations because other nations did not see eye to eye with her on "the fundamental principles of preserving peace in Eastern Asia." Japan's seizure of Manchuria is therefore an essential element in her conception of Far Eastern concord, even though in actual effect it has done more than anything else to bring about the present state of tension and distrust. Mr. Hirota further asserts that Japan's diplomacy is based on nothing but what is legitimate and rational as consonant with her "national mission." Precisely what that mission is, Mr. Hirota fails to disclose. None the less, there need be no misapprehension on that point, if, as seems indicated, Japan intends to adhere rigorously to her recent policies. There is no denial by Mr. Hirota that Japan is at the moment facing serious problems in her foreign relations. Indeed, there is apparent an under-current of anxiety as to the future in this regard, but the people are told to unite and be prepared to face with courage whatever difficulties may arise. Thus, despite the laboured effort to paint the picture as rosy as possible, we are left with a feeling that no real gesture towards a composing of existing differences or impending conflicts has been made. Japan adheres to her policies, and is evidently prepared to sink or swim by them. We could have hoped for a more reassuring and pacifying exposition of her intentions.

NOTES OF THE DAY

SAFETY: FIRST

PRACTICAL MEASURES

In any event, propaganda of the type employed in the campaign so far is not the best calculated to sink in; and if a real effort is to be made to reduce accidents, supplementary measures of a more practical nature, are desirable. One of our contemporaries has referred to the necessity for a definite ruling on right of way. Other points worth bearing in mind are the improvement of road surfaces as a guard against skidding and adequate marking of the roads. At the present time, rain on some of our roads converts them into veritable death-traps for both motorists and pedestrians, while road markings are in many places worn out very quickly.

CHIEF CAUSE

The chief cause of accidents, so far as the actual handling of the vehicle is concerned, seems to be the reckless, rather than the inexperienced driver. He may be a good driver who is in a great hurry, or he may be a bad driver who has no manners; but whatever he is, he must be discovered and made to mend his ways. The mobile police are the only people who are able to undertake this important work. They should be relieved of duties connected with technical offences which have no reference to road safety, and be ordered to concentrate upon discovering the dangerous driver. In addition, they should have powers to deal with the ill-mannered driver who may at any instant become dangerous.

THE VEHICLE

Existing laws are sufficiently wide to deal with all instances of faulty mechanisms; but there is another way in which the vehicle may be considered. It may be considered from the point of view of inherent dangerousness. Some vehicles are painted a drab colour which effectively camouflages them at night or when visibility is low. If slow-moving vehicles were to be painted a light colour, they would be more readily seen at night and accidents would be decreased. This appears to be a detail; but it is by attention to such details that road safety will be secured. These are immediately practical methods of reducing accidents. As an adjunct to them is the matter of education; education of drivers and of all other members of the public in road sense and road rules.

WAR DEBTS

Are the war debts dead? Judging by the attention, or lack of attention, the December payments, or lack of payments have received, it would seem so. Of $152,952,037 due, $8,898,123, or about 5 cents on the dollar, was collected. France, Poland, Estonia and Belgium didn't send a sou. Great Britain and several others reduced even the modest token payments of June 15. And there is every indication that this kind of "revision" will proceed rapidly toward complete extinction of the debts. Any purpose to make adjustments seems to be extinct already. A year ago, France talked about "suspension" of payments, and in June London was planning negotiations with Washington. Since then France has ceased to euphemise default and Britain has negotiated without result. In America there seems to have been a default of opinion, indeed, of public interest. Perhaps in the present session of Congress there may be some attempt to revive the old make-them-pay chorus. But on the whole the United States is drifting into "cancellation" with hardly a ripple of protest.

GERMANY'S POLICY WITH REGARD TO RACE

By the Minister of the Interior, Dr. Frick.

The national-socialist movement can claim to have saved the German nation under the leadership of Adolf Hitler from complete political destruction and the Reich from dissolution. But it would be a great mistake to believe that hereby the main problem had also been already solved. Everybody having a deeper knowledge of these questions knows that the more difficult task, namely the decline of the German nation, must still be accomplished. Germany has not only suffered from immense losses of the best of her race during the Great War, but is to-day also the country which shows the strongest decline in the birth-rate. Neither Berlin and the other great towns, nor the middle and smaller towns are today capable of maintaining the number of their population. Only the rural districts still show a small surplus of births which is, however, insufficient to compensate the losses in the German towns. Our people as a nation are without doubt becoming gradually too old and senile. But it is not only the number but also the value and quality of a part of the population which in the same degree give rise to grave reflections, because the number of hereditarily unsound families is steadily increasing. It must be borne in mind that in particular imbeciles and mentally deficient persons often have on the average greater progeny than the hereditarily sound. That means that the more valuable and more capable parts of the population will be severely reduced in numbers within a few generations, if this state of affairs continues as hitherto. Furthermore we must watch with anxiety the continuous mixture of races and the degeneration of our racial status. The former German Government lacked the courage to bring about a change in this dangerous state of our population. It is interesting to search for the causes of this decline. If we glance at German history we observe that we have changed from an agricultural State into an industrial one. Already in 1807, Hardenberg commenced the development of an industrial State. By allowing the soil to become private property he paved the way to the liberalistic system of economy in Germany. The growth of towns and the industrialisation of Germany was a further consequence. The natural development of the people with the peasant's idea of family and the selection of the fittest in the country, ceased to remain effective. Our legal system, the monetary conditions and the insurance laws tended to change the ideas of morals, of descent, family and progeny. Thus individualism, class-hatred, Marxism and Communism developed. Mechanisation of labour and economic slavery after the War simultaneously helped to accentuate the moral decline of our nations. The liberalistic spirit poisoned its soul and destroyed the sense for family life and the desire for children. Man and wife became estranged from family life. The man regarded his wife merely as his life companion but no more as the mother of his children. The natural consequence was an extremely heavy decline in the birth-rate in Germany.

"How shall I be about Mrs. Jones, mother? Real sweet, of sort of superior?"

The Very Idea!

THIS MOON.

By Eddie Kelly, Poodle-Poker

ONCE upon a time we thought that the moon just happened, like bunions, or shroffs, or Editors.

But since we have grown up we have had to modify this view, as we have since been told that it represents that part of the earth which formed the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

It seems that this slice of Earth was accidentally broken off during a disturbance, Noah presumably having a quarrel with his wife at the time.

Anyway this chunk of earth flew off into space and formed a world of its own.

This points to great carelessness on somebody's part. We are not making any insinuations, but it seems to us that land wouldn't have been half so valuable if we'd have had the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans to roam over.

In fact, we could have probably paid our shroffs at the end of the month if we'd have had our rightful share of the moon.

Then there is the more serious issue that has arisen through us losing the moon.

We would have had no America, so there wouldn't have been any films from Hollywood.

There would have been no need for us to live in Hongkong, as it wouldn't have been a seaport.

Body line bowling wouldn't have been invented, because there wouldn't have been any Australia.

What we'd like to know is why some other part of the earth couldn't have been taken instead of the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans.

Russia, for example, would have made a nice little auxiliary moon.

In fact, we know a lot of people who wouldn't bother much if we dispensed with Europe.

We suppose it's too late now to start in with a few sticks of dynamite?

Short Conversation With Sally The Cat

Uncle Ned:—It is no use whining and making a silly fuss just because you haven't seen the Ginger Cat for three days. He is obviously an adventurer in love, and therefore, fickle.

Sally: He loves no one but me.

Uncle Ned: They all say that.

Sally: He said I was "different."

Uncle Ned: That's a pretty old gag, too. Is he misunderstood?

Sally: Yes.

Uncle Ned: And lonely?

Sally: Terribly lonely.

Uncle Ned: All of which convinces me that he is a liar and a seducer.

Sally (dramatically): Nothing you say against him will ever convince me that he is anything but faithful and true.

It was lucky for Sally that she was sitting on the hearth, gazing sentimentally into the fire. Otherwise she might have looked out of the window and seen on the garden wall the sinister silhouette of the One She Loves casting his terrible spell over her rival.

Burglary at Ned's Nest

The beautiful bijou residence occupied by Mr. Edward Kelly, the mystery millionaire, was burgled the other evening when one of his lavishly original parties was in progress.

While his distinguished guests were chattering brilliantly in the sumptuous lounge, telling each other the latest (clean) stories, a burglar entered the imitation oak-panelled dining-room and stole a bottle of whisky.

Women screamed ... and so did some of the men when they realised it was the last bottle.

Although each guest was questioned closely before leaving, and several openly accused of drinking the whisky in the kitchen, the mystery still remains unsolved.

(With the compliments of Mr. Kelly's Press agent.)

MANCHESTER ANTI-JAPANESE SCENES

ACTION DEMANDED

HUGE PROTEST MEETING

London, Jan. 23. Lively scenes were witnessed at the great anti-Japanese dumping protest demonstrations in Manchester to-day, although perfect order was maintained throughout the proceedings.

Action! Action! Action! was the demand of the speakers, who addressed an audience of over seven thousand representative of most of the important elements in the Lancashire cotton industry. Five M.P.s were on the platform.

A resolution was unanimously passed calling for immediate Government action against Japanese competition, demanding, among other things, that all Anglo-Japanese Commercial Agreements containing the most favoured nation clause should be denounced and that the Dominions and the Colonies be persuaded to do the same.

PROHIBITION DEMANDED.

Lt. Commander F. W. Astbury (Con. Salford West) asserted that to put a tax on Japanese goods was useless. They wanted prohibition pure and simple.

Mr. Richards predicted that unless something was done, the next election would sweep every member of the Cabinet from office.

Mr. Shackleton asked why the Japanese delegation had been in Britain for several months without receiving instructions from Tokyo.

DEATH OF MR. J. CORNELL

WELL-KNOWN MARINE ENGINEER

A well-known figure on the China Coast passed away early yesterday morning in the person of Mr. James Cornell, marine engineer, who has been out East for well over 30 years.

Deceased was taken ill a few days ago. Pneumonia developed and he died at 2 a.m. yesterday at his residence, No. 4, Arran Street, Mongkok. He was 57 years of age.

Coming out East as a young man, the late Mr. Cornell was well-known all along the China Coast. He had been on several ships plying in these waters, and for several years a resident in Shanghai. During the last 15 years he had been in Hongkong. The last ship with which deceased was connected is believed to be the s.s. Halvard.

Deceased was a native of Scotland, hailing from Renfrewshire. The funeral takes place at 4 p.m. to-day.

The P. & O. liner Corfu is due here from Shanghai at 7 a.m. on Friday.

Totalling One Thousand Million Dollars

Washington, Jan. 23. The Treasury Department announces the issue of short-term loans to the value of $1,000,000,000.

Half of the sum will be in Treasury Notes bearing interest at the rate of two and a half per cent. and maturing on March 15, 1935.

The other half will be in the form of six-month certificates of indebtedness, at one and a half per cent. interest, maturing on September 15.—Reuter.

The new bond issue will be exempted from all taxation and interest will be payable annually. The Federal Reserve banks and the Treasury will receive subscriptions.

The Treasury Notes will be issued in denomination of $100 to $100,000, and the Certificates from $500 to $100,000.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S NEW WAR MINISTER

TO PURSUE ARAKI POLICY

Tokyo, Jan. 23. The newly appointed War Minister, Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, was duly sworn in office this morning at the Imperial Palace.

In an interview with pressmen, he declared that he was prepared to carry out General Araki's policies. He did not contemplate any change in his predecessor's basic policies nor any addition to them.—Central News.

HAPPY DAYS ARE NEAR AGAIN

NORTH ENGLAND OPTIMISM

GREAT ACTIVITY IN ENGINEERING

London, Jan. 23.

A more cheerful review of the basic industries of the North of England than has been possible for several years was given by Mr. Allan Paton, the chairman, to the shareholders of Martin's Bank at Liverpool to-day.

He summarised the outlook as follows:—Cotton more hopeful; shipbuilding, a better output assured; iron and steel, a steady improvement; engineering, great activity; agriculture, a decided change in the outlook; wool and woollens, a decided change in the outlook.

To the gain in these directions, said Mr. Paton, were to be added the cheering statements concerning the national revenue and the renewed confidence in sterling.

He said Great Britain's recovery was proceeding on normal lines and expressed the view that her policy of concentrating on lower rates of interest had had good effects on industry.

CLYDE OUTLOOK.

Although only 31 vessels were launched on the Clyde last year, it still maintained its position as the premier shipbuilding river in the world, stated the President of the Glasgow Shipowners at the annual meeting to-day.

Mr. Paton, he said, had seen shipbuilding at its low water mark and the output of all shipbuilding nations had totalled only 680,000 tons as compared with 970,000 the previous year.

The present year was bound to show a great improvement and the new tonnage placed with the Clyde was already 260,000 tons compared with last year's output of 166,300 tons. It required half a million tons to make the Clyde Yards even moderately busy, he added.—British Wireless.

AT THE SECOND ATTEMPT

ST. MIRREN DEFEAT PENICUK

London, Jan. 23. In their replayed Scottish Cup tie to-day, St. Mirren defeated Penicuk by four goals to one. On Saturday, the First Division side were held to a draw of two goals all.—Reuter.

Choi Sang, a casual labourer at the Taikeo Dockyard, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment by Mr. Hamilton, in the Central Police Court this morning, for the theft of two tins of paint from the dockyard.

Leung Sze, an amah, of 60, High Street, collapsed and fell overboard from a Star Ferry launch as the vessel was leaving the Hongkong wharf at 3.30 p.m. yesterday. She was rescued and sent to the Government Civil Hospital.

"I was sent to Shanghai, and I wanted to go to Shanghai," pleaded Li Tinsan before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, to a charge of having returned from banishment. Defendant was banished on December 12 last year. He was arrested in Wanchai. Mr. Hamilton imposed twelve months' hard labour.

Six weeks' imprisonment was imposed by Mr. Balfour, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on Sai Chuk, an unemployed, charged with theft of a bag containing $27 from the Tak Yuen shoemakers' shop in Wellington Street. The bag was the property of Wong King, a woman, who was looking over some shoes in the shop. She left the bag on the counter, and defendant walked in and ran away with it. He was arrested by a constable before he could get away.

Li On, an unemployed coolie, was this morning fined $50, or one month's imprisonment, by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy, for cutting pine trees and trespassing on the Government plantation No. 6A, above the new catchwater at Aberdeen. Ng Sau, another unemployed coolie, was fined $25 or three weeks for cutting dead trees at the same place. Chan Chuon was fined $5 or seven days for trespassing, and Lau On, charged with the same offence, was remanded until to-morrow, on his denying a charge of having returned from banishment.

again selling the manufactured product wholesale or in retail in whatever fashion its policy dictates.

In other words, legal standing was given to the previous deal with the Japanese, and its provisions implemented in a form which the Chinese merchants say has given them no interest in the matter.

PETITION DRAWN UP.

Seeing that between 10,000 and 15,000 of the Chinese tax-paying population of Macao have been earning their "rice" from this important industry, (some of the factories having been established as far back as a hundred years), they question the advisability of the Government in thus summarily "making away" their means of livelihood to a third party for the sake of the addition such a monopoly can bring to its revenues.

In a petition drawn up for presentation to both the local Government and to the Government at Lisbon, the merchants point out that the issue was not so much concerned with a monopoly as with the Chinese national viewpoint; their declared sentiments against the Japanese which they claim to have been outraged by this introduction of Japanese commercial control into the very arched of South China.

They are alarmed by the further possibilities pictured in the optimistic Japanese newspaper report, and pertinently ask the Government if it is looking elsewhere for that development of the Colony hitherto continued on a traditional harmony of relations between the Portuguese and the Chinese?

ASTUTE PLAN.

Exception is taken to the fact that when a regie was contemplated for wine, it was not put up for public bidding, as are all such monopolies according to the local law, and it is suggested that the Government has allowed itself, consciously or unconsciously, to become party to an astute plan by which the Japanese hope eventually to secure an outlet for their raw materials from Formosa and to secure an ascendancy over local Chinese industries.

A previous Japanese attempt to foist Japanese molasses on the local merchants as imports from Java is recalled, as well as an attempt to secure control of the fishing industry.

DIPLOMATIC MOVE LIKELY.

The Chinese wine trade clearly has much to lose if the facts are as reported, but it is in the disclosure of a new Japanese method of promoting business—that the affair begins to assume a new interest for those who have studied a question that has become increasingly important within recent times.

Apart from an opportunism which some discern in pressing a political issue into what may well have been a domestic discussion, developments of an international character may be expected to arise. The merchants of Macao have, it is said, taken up the matter through diplomatic channels, and through the South West Kuomintang Political Council, are said to intend cabling to their diplomatic representative at Lisbon, requesting him to direct the urgent attention of the Minister for the Colonies to the matter.

DEATH OF SIR WM. HARDY

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH WORKER

(Our Own Correspondent.)

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, January 24, 1.11 p.m.)

London, Jan. 24. The death has occurred of Sir William Bate Hardy, Director of Food Investigation in the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, and former Secretary of the Royal Society.

Born in 1864, he had a distinguished University career. He was the only man who had ever been invited to discourse before the Royal Society both as Bakerian lecturer as a physicist and as a biochemist. He threw new light on the fundamentals of Biology by his investigations into the structure of protoplasm, while his explanation of the principles of friction and lubrication taught some useful lessons. There were many other arts of which Sir William was a recognized master; he was a Trustee of the National Portrait Gallery, an amateur yachtsman who loved long sailings "in the best playground of the world"—the west coast of Scotland—and a connoisseur of Nature in many aspects and in many lands.

BIRD SHOP MYSTERY

INQUIRY TO BE HELD

The mysterious death of Mr. Chan Wan-poi (65), managing partner of the Kowloon Tong Bird shop, No. 115, Des Voeux Road, Central, on the night of December 20, will be the subject of a Coroner's inquiry to be held at the Central Magistracy to-morrow afternoon.

The inquiry will be in the nature of an effort to clear up the mystery, which the Police have so far not solved. At the time it was thought that there must have been some collaboration between folks inside the shop and some persons outside, and consequently all the folks were examined and the books of the firm were also examined for any clue which could throw light on the mystery.

The deceased was found lying dead in his bed in the cockpit during the night, and the police were not informed until several hours later. The relay was explained as being due to a desire by the folks to get in touch with the young son of the victim who lived in another part of the city.

THE CUP AGAIN: 32 CLUBS LEFT IN THE STRUGGLE

WINNOWING STARTERS FROM NON-STOPPERS

LONDONERS TO CHEER WEST HAM-ARSENAL MATCH

CLUB WHO MAY BE EXPECTED TO SURVIVE

(By "The Pilgrim")

Winnowing the starters from the non-stoppers, the English Football Association Cup goes to the fourth round on Saturday when the 32 surviving clubs take the field to decide the participants in the next eight matches.

Grimsby, who scraped through the last round by sneaking in a quiet goal while Clapton Orient were playing Ring-roses round the referee, meet the club they defeated in the second round last year. Plymouth have an advantage this season in being drawn on their own ground.

The Spurs-Hammers engagement at White Hart Lane should provide a record gate and some sensational football. Both teams are capable of producing brilliant if erratic football as I remember them when they shared points on the same ground in the League last season.

Manchester City, the runners-up have a moderate task before them in their visit to Hull. It will be remembered that Everton, the holders, had the misfortune to be eclipsed by Spurs recently on the latter's venue.

Again Derby County entertain the Wolves and again I imagine the Rams will carry off the honours. It was in the third round of the cup last season that the Wolves were vanquished by 6-3 at Derby.

With the remembrance of a 4-1 win over Swansea a few weeks ago at home, Bury will almost welcome the club to their ground on Saturday but form has changed since then, and you never can tell! However, I have decided to favour the home team again though I don't think they will survive another round.

Aston Villa meet their bogey team in Sunderland who beat them in the same round last year at Villa Park by three clear goals, and have drawn with them also at the Park in a League match earlier this season.

Arsenal should have little difficulty in getting through this round at the expense of Crystal Palace and Huddersfield have a still easier task at home to Northampton.

League engagements take a back seat of course and there are only a few in the First and Second Divisions.

With the fixtures as they are, I cannot see any change taking place among the leaders of the Southern Section though if Coventry repeat their performance of last week, they will seriously jeopardise their promotion chances.

If Luton win away on Saturday I think they will have to be regarded as strong contenders also, for they have their good spell to come in my opinion.

Chesterfield I feel, are good for nothing better than a draw at Rochdale of all places, but they can just afford to ease up for a brief spell before the final spurt. They always run things fine at Salter Lane and they will probably gain their promotion on the last match as I witnessed them win it two seasons ago.

If Rangers can keep up their smashing form in the Scottish senior League they may yet snatch the laurels from Motherwell who have found difficulty lately in testing the net.

TEACHING THE TURKS TO PLAY FOOTBALL

PLAYERS ARE TREMENDOUSLY KEEN BUT TOO EXCITABLE

The humours—and sometimes trials—of teaching the Turks to play Association football as it is understood in Britain have been amusingly rererred by Mr. Sydney Puddefoot, the former West Ham Chesterfield and English international centre forward, who has been engaged to train the Galata Serai (Istanbul) Football Club up to "championship" form.

"The Turks are tremendously keen," he says. "Every Friday (their rest-day) and Sunday, nearly all the year round, matches follow each other in the chief stadium here from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. In the very hottest weather they start at 5 p.m. and go on as long as it is light. Spectators bring their food and sit out the whole series.

HUFFY REFEREE.

"But this keenness makes the players too excitable. There are always police and an ambulance on the ground. In the middle of a match, supposing the referee gives a penalty or there is some incident, a team will suddenly refuse to play any more, walk off the ground and go to the dressing-room. One has to go and talk them over before they will come out again. One can never guarantee that a match will end. Sometimes the referee will get offended and refuse to continue.

"Some of the nicknames of players I have had to deal with show the style of play that is liked. There is 'Lion,' and 'Ball,' and even one 'Hodja' (teacher)—I don't know why the last gets his name. Play gets very rough indeed at times.

FIVE MINUTES FOOTBALL.

(By "Saracen")

Recently in talking to a leading Scottish international about present day football he said: "Every team ought to have one inside forward who has a quick burst to take the ball through in the penalty area and it is better if both of them have this qualification. He should also be big and strong enough to withstand a challenge."

There are few players who play in this style today. The last survivor I think is David Jack. One, however, who may wear his mantle is Luke, the young Huddersfield inside left and I shall be surprised if he is not tried preparatory to the selection of the team to oppose Scotland.

Jack has been one of the greatest players of his time and worth every penny of the £10,000 he cost the Arsenal. First of all he was a complete contrast to James, one going up to take a hand in the scoring and the other lying back to create the openings.

Jack possessed every attribute of the inside forward. His ball play was splendid. He collected a pass with a sure touch and brought the ball under control to move forward at wonderful speed. There have been players who could give him a start in a hundred yards' sprint but none who could equal him in getting off the mark and for the first ten or fifteen yards.

SCOTTISH FAILING.

At Huddersfield they say that Luke for ten yards is like a streak of lightning and this trait alone will make him outstanding among a lot of very ordinary inside forwards.

Scottish authorities and players have always had a high admiration for Jack. Once on the eve of a match with England an Anglo in the Scottish side was asked to describe him and he said: "He is one of us, but he moves straighter and faster."

I have always thought that the Scottish forward would be a more dangerous player if he acquired the burst of a Jack. Having beaten an opponent, however, he is inclined instantly to slow down as if to give himself time in which to decide what to do next. He does not get away quickly with the ball; indeed he is often in danger of allowing the man he has beaten to recover and come again and make a second attempt to tackle.

The Scotsman's hesitation also gives the defence a few seconds grace in which to consolidate their positions whereas if the ball is taken forward quickly they are more likely to be kept on the run.

The forward too should try and get out of the habit of playing at one speed. Even by speeding up for a few strides he may avoid a tackle and at the same time introduce an element of surprise.

"They have some queer rules of their own. Charging is not allowed, and yet there is any amount of deliberate kicking of one another. The goalkeeper is not permitted to be touched when he has the ball. He may bounce it about up and down, and no one may go for him. Nevertheless some goalkeepers are padded at the shoulders and knees.

A BOUQUET.

"Matches begin with the presentation of a bouquet and the club flag between the teams, handshakes and club 'cries' like the American ones. They sometimes end with players and spectators joining in a general mace.

"Sometimes a player will say to me, 'Mister, I can't play any more!' or 'Mister, they are calling me an Arab' (this was a rather dark-skinned player).

"The cleverness and speed of Turkish players, however, added to the English-style teaching I am giving them, will, I think, make them into great players. They are certainly 300 per cent. better than when I first saw them on the Continent five years ago.

"Even in the six months since I have been training the Galata Serai Club—once the champion club of Turkey, but, when I came, right down, dispirited and divided—I have got it up to the point of losing by one goal only against the present champions in the first league match we have played.

"HE'S CLEVER"

"It is extraordinary how keen they are on English football. They follow all the League matches in the papers and know all the principal players by name.

"Their chief defect is that they won't shoot. They are all out for exhibition. 'He's clever, he's beaten six men!' and that sort of thing. They are extremely fast, out they never take a chance or shoot from a distance. It is still almost impossible for them to kick a ball the first time. They have to stop it, and then kick.

"It is expected that a Turkish national team will enter for the world cup next year, and I am being asked to coach it. Its first match will be against Egypt.

"But I shall have to teach the forwards not to shout to the opposing goalkeeper, 'You're not going to save this!' and when he doesn't save it, go and shake hands with him!

"When the Turks learn more self-control in the game and know and obey the rules better, there is no doubt that they will form first-rate teams. Association football is the one national sport they are really interested in."

INTER-HONG SOCCER WON BY JARDINES

COLD SHOWERS AFTER THE GAME!

B. & S. OUTPLAYED

Enjoying the assistance of three local league players, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., easily defeated Messrs. Butterfield and Swire in the first Inter-Hong football match played between these business houses for something like ten years, when they met on the Club ground yesterday.

Jardine's netted five times without reply, a depleted B. and S. team being further weakened through the absence of Campbell. What the teams lacked in football technique and finesse, they balanced by keenness, and the game was most enjoyable from every viewpoint. The Jardines forward line was often responsible for some neat movements, Hill's league experience greatly assisting in keeping the attack together. Four of the five forwards scored goals, the other coming from Manning Ralton, who came up from back to convert a penalty.

CHAMPION JOCKEY SCORES.

Jardines were three to the good at the interval, Leo Frost proving that being champion jockey did not mean that his sporting prowess was confined to the turf, by netting the first. White and Hill added further goals before half time.

The B. and S. forwards were rarely in evidence, and their rushes, although determined, were easily repulsed by the vigilant Jardines defence.

BRRHGII

The keen and lively exchanges evidently caused a severe circulation of the blood among the players, for report has it that after the match they all took cold showers! This is, in itself, a feat unparalleled in local football.

The teams were:—
Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co.:—Nichols; Urquhart and M. Ralton; Chadderton, Punchedon and Dinnen; Butler, Hill, Frost, White and Duncan.
Messrs. Butterfield and Swire:—Lawrie; Castleton and Hinton; McIntosh, Crawford and Knowles; Campbell, Williamson, Johnson, Cowie and Elliott.

BORDERERS SIX-A-SIDE FOOTBALL TOURNEY

WASEDA DIVIDES HONOURS

Doshisha put up a great performance. In Tokyo recently when they drew eight points each with Waseda, champions of the Tokyo Rugby League. The match was for the national championship, but at the end of a strenuous battle the Kwanto and Kwansai champions had each preserved their unbeaten records.

The result was a surprise; Waseda being generally expected to win, but the Kwansai side played a truly great game in the first half—when Waseda scored a goal and a try—and then had their turn after the interval, drawing level through a penalty goal and a goal.

Waseda got their first try in 15 minutes, after having the worst of it in midfield, Komohara getting over after a fine back movement. Nogami goalled it, and then for a time it seemed that Waseda would outplay their rivals. However, the Doshisha defence held out until the 26th minute, when Yamamoto sent Nogami over. This try was not converted.

In the fifteenth minute of the second half Hashimoto kicked a penalty goal for Doshisha. Watanabe had been off-side—and four minutes later Naito got over. There was tremendous excitement when Hashimoto added the extra points. Both defences were equal to the occasion, and there was no further scoring.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

Club "A" to Meet Naval Combination

The rugby section of the Hongkong Football Club are fielding an "A" team this afternoon to oppose H.M.S. Cumberland and H.M.S. Tamar in a friendly match at Happy Valley at 4.45 p.m.

The Club team will include several players who figured in the senior fifteen on Saturday when the Club were beaten by the Combined Services by 19 points to three. J. P. Whitham, G. P. Lammert and J. J. Ferguson who were absent on Saturday have not been included for this afternoon's match. The Club line-up will be as follows:—

FAVOURITES BEATEN

TWO CORNERS WIN GAME

The No. 1 Group favourites for the Six-a-Side football tournament of the South Wales Borderers, were unexpectedly beaten by the No. 1 Platoon when they met in the final at Lo Wu Camp on Monday. The Platoon scored a goal and two corners, to which the Group replied with a goal through Mullane, the Battalion right back.

The Group enjoyed the luck of the toss and elected to play with the slight wind behind them, but the advantage was quickly set at naught by the Platoon, who assumed an ascendancy from the start which was never seriously threatened.

The Group were constantly on the defensive in the first half, and at the interval the Platoon led by a corner to nil.

The losers brightened up considerably after the change over, but their attacks were easily repelled, and play swung to the other end, where Fortey, Battalion centre-forward, broke through to net, and a little later forced a corner.

The Group's solitary goal was delayed until a few minutes from the end, when Mullane made his way through the defence to beat the goalkeeper.

The Platoon thus won by two corners after a most praiseworthy display.

The teams were:—
No. 1 Platoon:—Pte. Morrison, Pte. Owens, L/Cpl. Herbert, L/Cpl. Andrews, L/Cpl. Smith and Pte. Fortey.

No. 1 Group:—L/Cpl. Mullane, Pte. Greedy, Pte. Lenin, L/Cpl. Hewitt, Pte. Hayes and Pte. Hopes.

SPORTING BATTALION FOR HONGKONG

Royal Welch Fusiliers Due Here Next

Rich in sporting talent, the 2nd Royal Welch Fusiliers, which is next Battalion for Hongkong, is bound to figure prominently in all branches of local sport.

The Battalion plays football in both codes, and has been in the final of the Army Association Cup. In boxing, some Army and open champions have been produced in Willis, Jones, Pritchard, Rawlins and others. Lieut. Martin was a champion quarter-miller, and there was Lieut. Lloyd and other athletes of post-war years who kept and keep the flag flying.

The Royal Welch Fusiliers has its marksmen in the Army shoots, of whom one recalls Col. Sir R. Colleton.

WON FAME IN CHINA.

With Hongkong as its next station the R.W.F., which bears the Red Dragon, returns to the scene of former exploits, as it was in 1898, 1899 and 1900, including the Boxer Rebellion operations of the latter year. It was at the relief of Peking and Tientsin, and "Peking" is a scroll borne on the Colours.

Among other memorable engagements which figure in the annals of the 23rd Foot are the defence of Minorca, Sevastopol and Frederickstadt, together with the relief of Peking, Tientsin, Lucknow, Ladysmith and Kut.

STILL SUPREME

BOBBY JONES DOES 8 UNDER PAR ROUND

New York. Bobby Jones continues to play the most amazing golf, and absence from serious competition for three years does not seem in the least to have affected his game.

Playing over his home course at the East Lake Club he went round this championship course in 64—eight under par.

He should have broken his own course record of 63, as he reached the eighteenth green in '61. "Calamity Jane," his famous putter, failed him, however, and he required three puts for his 64.

M. G. MAGNETTES IN 1,000 MILE RACE

Englishwoman to Drive for Britain in Classic Event

London. Great Britain will be represented again this year in the Italian Mille Miglia—with a team of M. G. Magnettes, twelve horse-power motor cars. This thousand-mile road race around Italy is considered to be the world's most dangerous race.

As a sporting gesture and for the sake of Great Britain's prestige on the Continent, Sir William Morris is financing the venture.

The team will be under the leadership of Lord Howe as last year and the same cars will be driven. The drivers will be E. H. Hall and Mrs. Hall, Lord Howe, Count Lurani and C. Penn Hughes and, presumably, another.

Thus for the first time there will be a woman competitor in the Mille Miglia—an English woman.

M. G.'S SWEEPING SUCCESS. Last April these Magnettes scored a sweeping success in the light car class in this classic race. G.E.T. Eyston with Count Lurani were first, and Lord Howe with H. G. Hamilton gained second place. Afterwards, Lord Howe described the affair as the most gruelling test to which any car could be put.

The race is over a thousand-mile course starting from Brescia in the north and running southwards via Bologna and Florence to Rome. The return course, making a figure of eight, passes through Perugia, Ancona and Padua back to Brescia.

AUSTRIANS NEED TEACHING

Must Learn to Shoot to Play Better Soccer

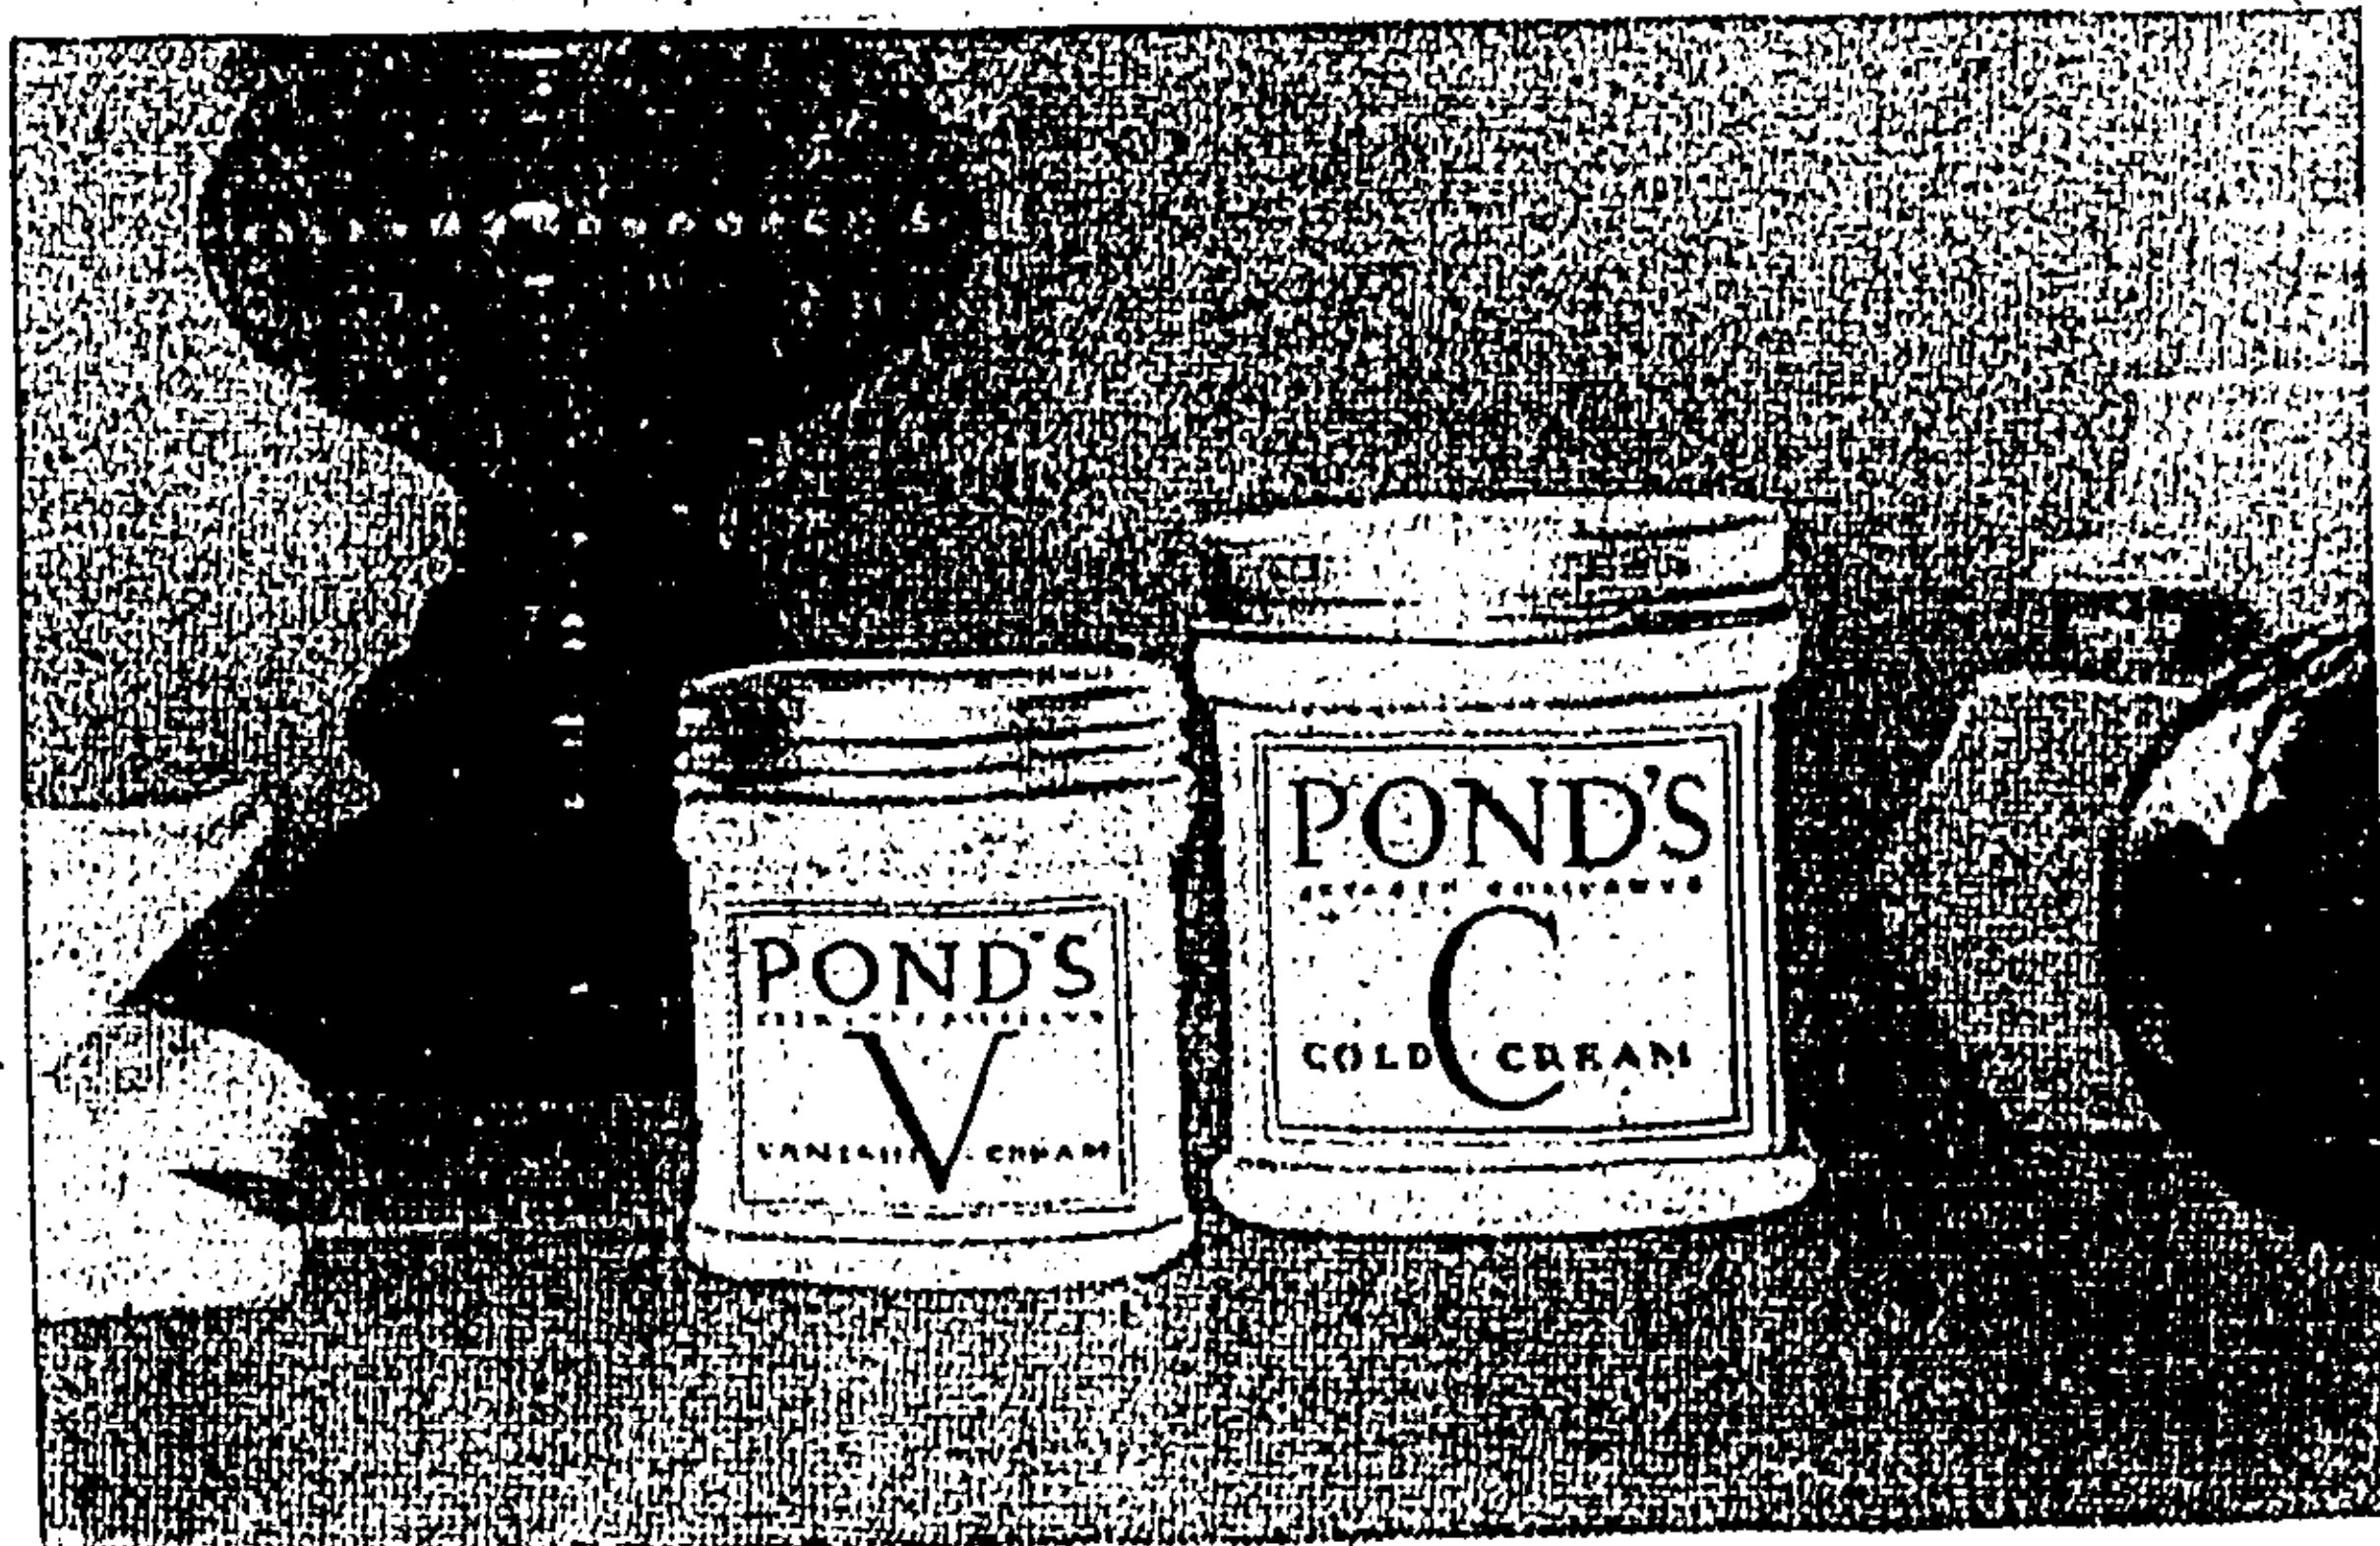

London. How to shoot is the chief lesson to be learnt by the Austrians. That is evident from the matches they have played in England, and particularly in the match between Austria F. C. and Manchester City, which the Mancunians won by 3-0.

This has led to Hugo Melis, captain-manager of the Austrian International teams, being attacked.

"We hear and read," says Herr Schoenecker, a director of the Rapid Club of Vienna, "that our forward line played splendidly up to the eighteen yards, but then could not shoot. Yet a helpless spectator from the grandstand of this miserable situation was Bindor, who shot 104 goals in 70 matches for the Rapid Club."

A PEACH-BLOOM SKIN

in spite of exposure - - - -
is yours if you guard it this way.

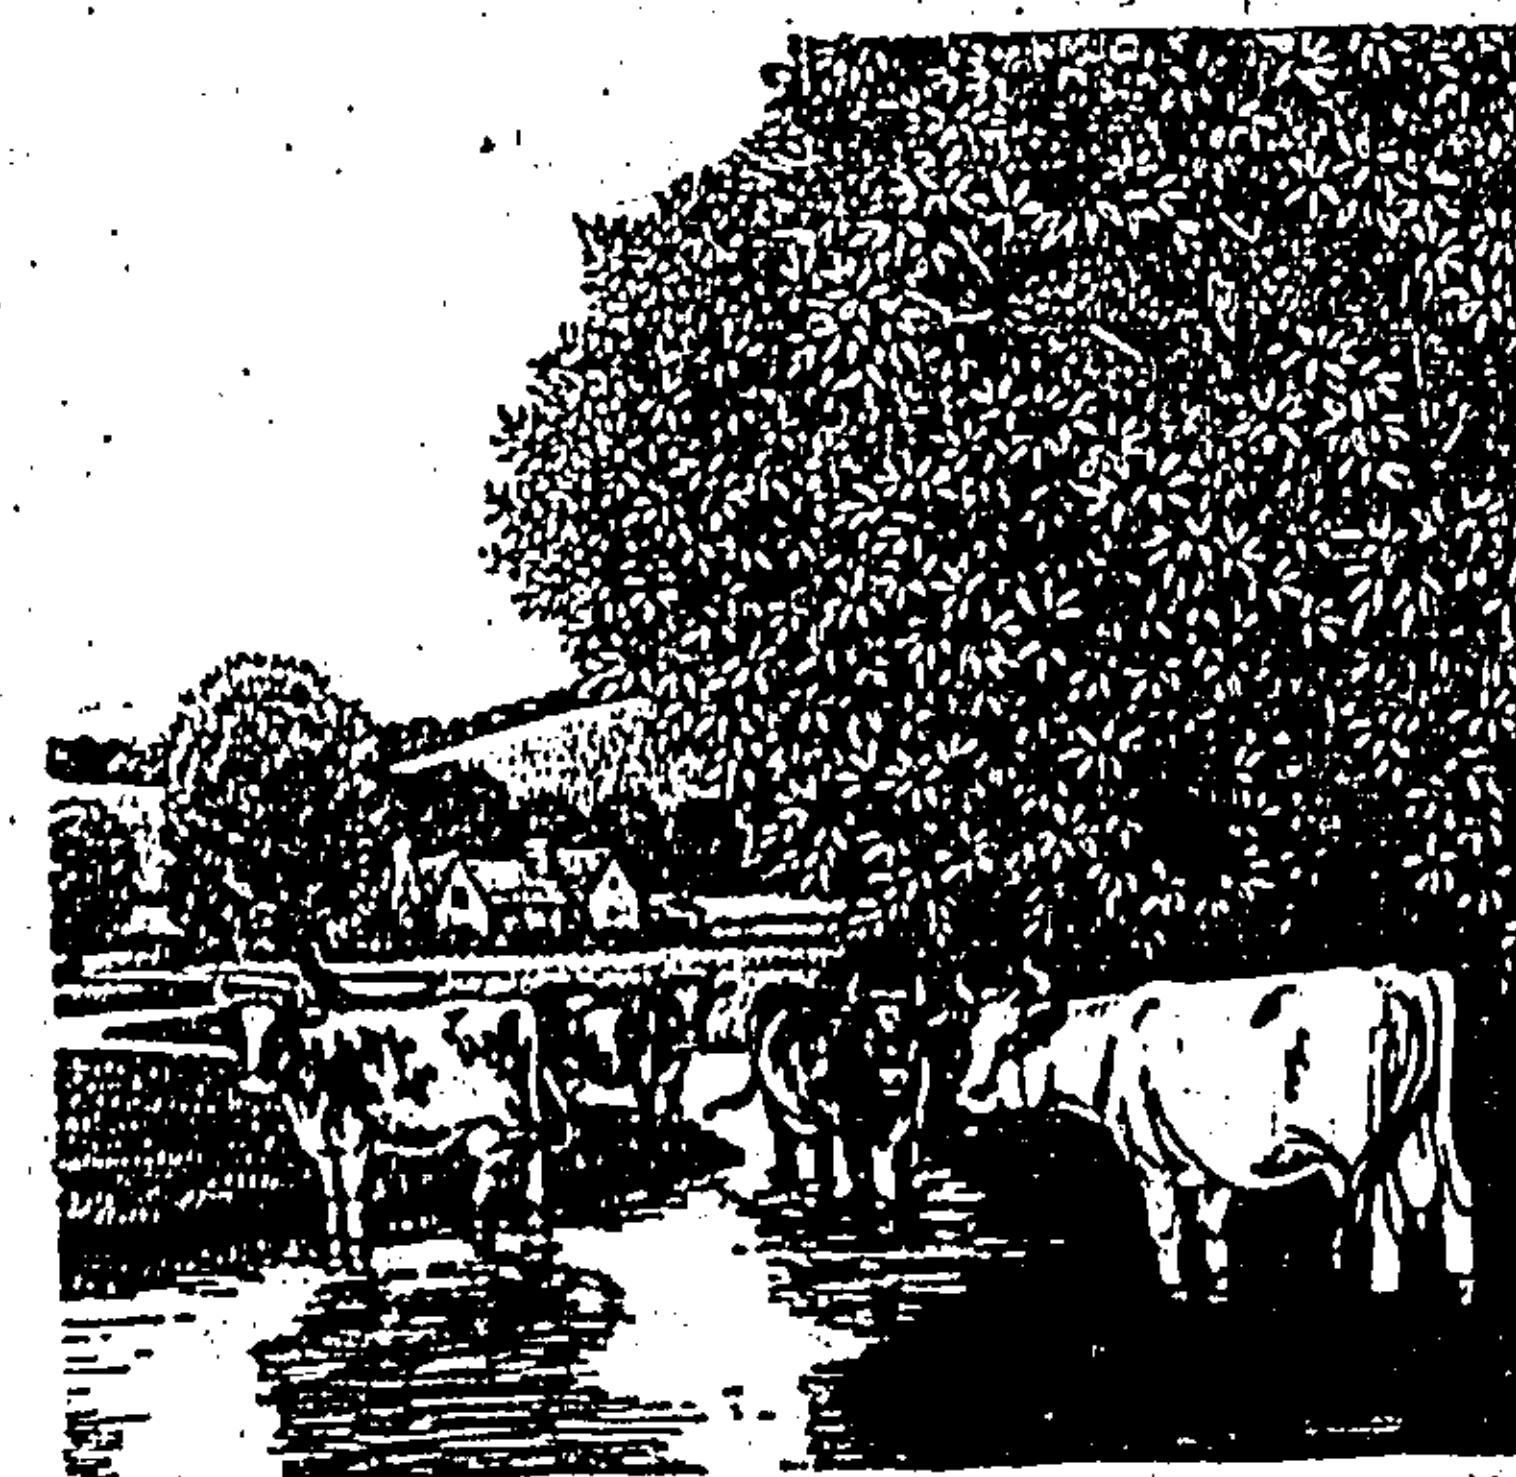

Pond's Cold Cream cleanses immaculately. Pond's Vanishing Cream protects and is a perfect powder base.

A peach-bloom skin . . . dewy fresh velvety soft . . . invitingly cool . . . exquisitely clear and fine of texture . . . youthfully smooth, firm, supple . . . this is the gift Pond's brings to you! You know that your skin must be especially guarded in hot countries; scorching sun and drying dust are dangerous to beauty. Yet you can golf, ride, travel; happy in the satisfaction of knowing your skin will not suffer from the effects of exposure if you give it this special care. For you need not have a dried out, coarsened complexion with Pond's Two famous Creams to aid you. So, to give your skin the scrupulous attention it needs in a trying climate, follow this way regularly:

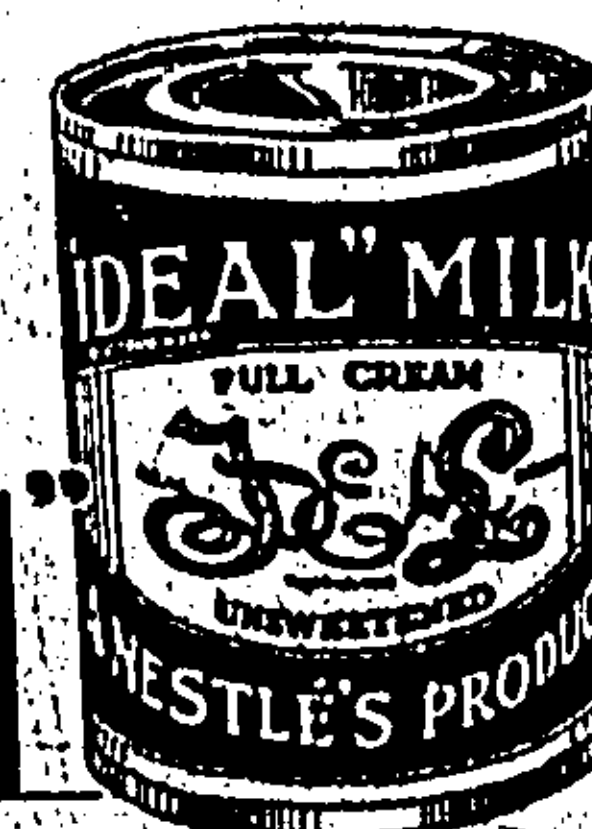

Spread Pond's Cold Cream generously over face and neck. Smooth in with gentle upward, outward strokes. The fine oils search out dirt from the roots of the pores, and soothe that taut feeling after exposure. Wipe off Cream and dirt. Apply more Cream. Remove. Now your skin is thoroughly cleansed and refreshed. Always do this at bedtime, and leave on a little Cream overnight to keep the skin supple and restore the natural oils dried out by sun and wind. After each daytime cleansing, apply a bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream to soothe, protect, and for a powder base. Don't forget to rub some into your hands! Follow the Pond's way faithfully, and a peach-bloom-skin is yours!

ON AN ENGLISH FARM

In various parts of England—farming districts famed throughout the world for their excellent pasturage—are situated the Nestlé condensates.

Here your "Ideal" Milk is prepared under the most perfect conditions. Only the purest and richest milk is used, and being prepared by a special process, all the cream is retained. Unlimited are its uses. In the kitchen "Ideal" Milk is indispensable, giving to your dishes a distinctive and creamy richness. It's British too.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. The "Wall Street Journal" reports: "The market advanced as much as four points due to favourable business and legislative news including favourable action on the Vinson Bill which armed steel and shipbuilding stocks. Bonds were narrowly irregular. Sugar stocks advanced due to the recognition of Cuba."

Our New York office cable: "Stocks: The market responded to renewed buying demand after temporary setback and looks higher. Wheat: The market was oversold. There were drought, dust and storms in Kansas. Buying side strongly suggested. Cotton: being held in legislation. It now being held in the Senate to the Gold Bill and reported reduction of Government spending programme in February is not conducive to new buying. Spot quiet. Basis of the market firm. Silver: The market absorbed offerings with very little fluctuations. There were heavy foreign offerings of both spot and futures. In view of the increasing agitation which speculators think will result in a concession to the silver bloc, the feeling continues to be moderately bullish. The R.F.C. gold price yesterday was $34.46, unchanged."

covered in spite of war and epidemics and from where it always gathered new strength. It must therefore be attempted by all means to couple the best German blood with German ground and soil. Settling must therefore take place in a way that a sufficient increase of the population is ensured by means of legal provisions regulating taxation and the rights of inheritance.

The Reich, the States and Communities must investigate how their entire administration affects the question of population and must reform it as far as necessary. But decrees and economic measures alone do not suffice to awaken the desire for children in a nation. We must not overlook that it is a problem principally of an educational, psychological and ethical character. Youth must also be educated in this sense and it must be regarded as its duty to become fully conscious of the value of German hereditary substance.

I consider it the foremost duty of the Government of the National Revolution to spread and cultivate these ideas in the German nation and to do all in its power to raise and maintain the racial status of the German people in the heart of Europe.

COXSWAIN'S STORY OF LAUNCH SINKING DISBELIEVED

RUSSIAN TIMBER FOR BRITAIN

CANADIAN OUTCRY SEQUEL

RESTRICTION ON IMPORTS

London, Jan. 23. The outcry against the importation of Great Britain of Russian timber culminated yesterday in an announcement by H. M. Government that imports for 1934 must be restricted to 350,000 standards, 85,000 standards below the quantity for which Timber Distributors, Ltd., representing 200 British importers, had been negotiating.

Furthermore, the "fall clause," under which Russian prices are automatically reduced if prices elsewhere are lowered, must not be included in any new contracts.

The restriction is due to the long-sustained pressure by Canada that Article XXI of the Ottawa Agreement forbids the import of State-subsidised goods which compete injuriously with Imperial products.

RADICAL CONTENTIONS.

Conservatives hail the restriction with satisfaction. Radicals, on the other hand, aver that it will mean a loss of £1,000,000 to British industry. Canada, they say, cannot meet requirements and it will merely mean that Scandinavia will get the business. Furthermore, they contend that Russian timber is superior to any other.

All these assertions the Canadians vigorously deny. It is understood that the Anglo-Russian trade negotiations are held up over the quantity of herring Russia would guarantee to buy, also over the question of re-opening the ambassadorial shops in Moscow in which diplomats were formerly able to buy imported goods at specially favourable terms. Compensation for the loss sustained by the Lena Gold Fields Co. is a further stumbling-block.

The Russians complain that they are being treated as inferior creatures. The British reply is that Russia sells to Britain nearly three times as much as she buys from this country.—Reuter.

CIVIL WAR IN NINGSHA

FIERCE FIGHTING DEVELOPING

Peking, Jan. 24. In spite of strong pressure from Peking, the internecine war between Ma Hung-kwei and Sun Tien-ying is going on with greater intensity with Pinglo as the prize.

The fighting is now involving Chinghai, from where General Ma Pu-fang, a Mohammedan general, is leading a force to Ningsha to support General Ma Hung-kwei against the invaders under Sun Tien-ying. Over 20,000 troops are being massed at Pinglo.—Central News.

BRITISH NAVAL STRATEGY IN THE FAR EAST

speech of the Soviet Foreign Commissar M. Maxim Litvinoff, before the Central Executive Committee of the U.S.S.R.

The Soviet-Japanese conflict derives, writes M. Herriot, from the Japanese campaign in Manchuria, the creation of Manchukuo, the fear of the U.S.S.R. for its interests in the Chinese Eastern Railway, the Japanese-Soviet negotiations for the sale of the Line, Japanese military preparations which the U.S.S.R. claims Japan is making in Manchuria, and near the frontiers, and, finally, the strong fortification of its own frontiers by the Soviet Government.

PEACE OR WAR?

"In this way, the future sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway in reality poses the question of peace or war," declares M. Herriot, who recalls M. Litvinoff's conclusions to the effect that the Soviet Union will not cede an inch of her territory but will proceed with the reinforcement of the Red Army, the Red Fleet and Red Aviation. He points out that Moscow made its peace with Washington precisely at a time when the situation in the Far East was growing more complicated and difficult and, in M. Herriot's opinion, American recognition of the U.S.S.R. modified the situation considerably. At that time and still to-day, a multiplicity of incidents have occurred along the Chinese Eastern Railway which have served to exacerbate the parties involved in the dispute, he writes. "On both sides, the tension seems to be great and almost anything can be converted into a pretext for something further."

JAPAN'S EYES.

Similarly, M. Herriot describes how Japan is closely watching the moves being made by the United States in matters of policy and even more particularly in matters of naval armaments.

"The situation is therefore clear," he goes on. "Between Japan and the United States on the one hand and between Japan and the Soviet Union on the other, there is unquestionably great tension and we certainly cannot say that the situation is not dangerous. On the one side it is a question of railways and on the other a question of fleets, which, taken together with Japan's avowed need for finding space for her excess population and the development of her exports which is becoming more and more the concern of many countries, complete the picture of the problem in its general and permanent form and in its present acuteness."

FRANCE'S POSITION.

And in this delicate situation, asks the ex-Premier, "what is the position of France? I have seen that certain American newspapers have undertaken to deal with this question, as, for instance, the New York Herald-Tribune on October 23, 1933, and the Chicago Tribune on August 9. These

LATEST "SAFETY FIRST" REPORT

In connexion with the "Safety First" campaign, the Police Traffic Office has issued the following further reports of accidents occurring yesterday and on Monday:

On Monday at 12.30 p.m., motor lorry No. 1658 was being driven along Connaught Road West near Queen's Street, followed by motor lorry No. 3437. The driver of motor lorry No. 1658 signalled he was going to stop. The driver of motor lorry No. 3437 failed to stop his vehicle in time and ran into the rear of motor lorry No. 1658, causing damage to the mudguard.

At 2.30 p.m. on Monday, motor bus No. 603 was being driven along Queen's Road Central near King's Theatre from east to west and collided with a public ricksha, number unknown, causing slight damage to the rear mudguard of the bus. No damage to ricksha. At 9.10 a.m. yesterday, private motor car No. 4046 was being driven down Pedder Street, followed by motor bus No. 618. The private car had to stop suddenly to avoid a Chinese male who was running across the road. Damage to the rear lamp of the private car and crank handle of the bus.

At 5 p.m. on Monday, private motor car No. 4151 was being driven along Shaikwan Road from east to west by Mr. T. C. Barclay when near the Yacht Club he slowed down with the intention of stopping, but instead of applying the brake he trod on the accelerator, and knocked down Kung Cheung who was walking in the side channel, causing slight injury to his left knee. Treated at the Government Civil Hospital. Not detained.

Motor lorry No. 364 was being driven on board the Vehicular Ferry. Private motor car No. 2243 was stationary on the centre of the ferry when the driver of the private car opened the front door on the offside of the car as the lorry was passing. The nearside of the lorry came in collision with the door, causing slight damage to same.

papers accuse France of trying to complicate the present imbroglio. We formally deny these insinuations.

"France will continue to respect the agreements to which she has affixed her signature, the Versailles Treaty, the Kellogg Pact etc., but she will repudiate any un-erand action or tendentious intervention."

France has the deepest respect for the three great nations engaged in the Far Eastern controversy, Japan, the United States and the Soviet Union, and will not cease to exercise or offer her good offices to maintain in the Far East what she seeks everywhere for herself and everyone—peace.—Havas.

COURT OF INQUIRY INTO COLLISION

OFFICERS OF KWONG FOOK CHEONG HELD BLAMELESS

"TOMMY ATKINS" ON WRONG SIDE OF CHANNEL

A Marine Court of Enquiry, presided over by the Harbour Master, Mr. Comdr. Hole, R.N. (Retd.), was held this morning into the circumstances attending the collision between the steamer Kwong Fook Cheong and the Army steam launch Tommy Atkins, which resulted in the latter vessel sinking within half an hour of the impact in Capsulmun Pass on the night of January 3 last.

Comdr. Hole was assisted by Lieut-Comdr. E. H. C. Branson, R.N. (H.M.S. Tamar), Capt. C. Benstead, master of the s.s. San Nam Hoi, Capt. A. Campbell, master of the s.s. Sai On, Capt. W. Greybrook, master of the s.s. Liang Chow.

Mr. G. K. Hall Brutton appeared on behalf of the master of the Kwong Fook Cheong, and Mr. Leo D'Almada, senr., was for the owners of the ship. Mr. J. B. Prentiss watched the proceedings on behalf of the War Department and the coxswain of the Tommy Atkins.

MASTER'S EVIDENCE.

Reginald Elvidge, master of the s.s. Kwong Fook Cheong, in evidence said he held master's certificate of competency 44446 of Hongkong, which he produced. On January 3, the ship left Hongkong for Kongmoon at 6.30 p.m.

Describing the incidents which culminated in the collision, the master said:—"At about 7.10 p.m. I was steering north-west point north approaching the Capsulmun. The Capsulmun white light was nearly abeam on the starboard hand bearing N46E true. The distance was about one-and-a-half cables."

"I first observed one green and one white light on my port bow about one point. About a minute later, looking with my glasses I could now see two white lights close together, vertically, and still a green light. Shortly after this I heard one blast. This was about 7.12 p.m. I answered with one short blast. I then saw that this vessel did not alter her course. At that time my speed would be about eight knots through the water. I stopped my engines. Shortly after my engines had stopped I heard another short blast from this vessel which I again answered with one short blast. I did not alter my course in either case."

"Still this vessel did not alter her course and I saw then that a collision was about to occur, so I put my engines at full speed astern, giving three short blasts on the whistle. Almost at the same time I heard two short blasts from the other vessel. Ten or fifteen seconds later we collided. I could then see that it was a steam launch with a large lighted mast on her port side and that the launch had been struck on her starboard quarter. She was practically at right angles. The collision occurred at about 7.15.

LAUNCH SINKS.

"After I stopped my engines, I immediately ordered the emergency boat away in charge of the first mate who after investigations, came alongside and reported to me that no lives had been lost, the crew of the launch being saved aboard the lighter which was undamaged and that the launch had sunk."

"I then pointed the launch out to him which I had seen was not sunk and was drifting a short distance away. I told him to see if anything could be done for this launch while I kept my eye on the lighter. Nothing could be done for her and she sank at 7.45 p.m. with the Mawam Red Light being south-east about one cable's distance. At the time of the collision the Mawam Red Light was bearing N36E from the ship about three-quarters cable distance. I got my boat on board and took the lighter in tow and brought back to Hongkong."

Replying to the President, witness said the lighter was rather large, being about 75 feet in length. He handed her over to a police launch.

THE ONLY COURSE.

Questioned by Mr. Hall Brutton, Capt. Elvidge said he was quite sure he only heard one blast and again two short blasts just before the collision. He did not alter his course because the Kwong Fook Cheong was too close to the starboard side of the channel, and it was about one-quarter flood tide. There were three vessels approaching Capsulmun from Hong-

ESTHONIA TURNS FASCIST

SALVO OF GUNS AS SIGNAL

Reval, Jan. 23. The clocks striking midnight was the signal for a salvo of twenty-one guns, announcing the birth of a new Fascist State in Esthonia.

The occasion was celebrated at a midnight meeting of the Cabinet, at which the Premier, Dr. Paets, assumed the ad interim functions of the President until elected by popular vote.—Reuter.

coming through Capsulmun ever have occasion to go to a place where you say the collision occurred?—Witness: I cannot explain.

Witness cannot accept the position you give. It is obviously impossible that at a dark night and I put the position approximately.

Witness: When I first sighted her she was inside the channel to the south.

How far were you from Ma Wan light when you first sighted her?—About 600 yards.

What bearing on your bow?—About four points.

Witness's bearings were marked on a chart and the chairman said:—These marks bear out the story of the officers of the Kwong Fook Cheong.

COURT'S FINDING.

After a retirement of 30 minutes the finding of the Court was read as follows:—"We find that the s.s. Kwong Fook Cheong, of Hongkong, of which Mr. Reginald Elvidge is master, left Hongkong at about 6.30 p.m. on the evening of 3rd January 1934 on a voyage to Kongmoon."

That at 7.10 p.m. whilst entering the Cap Sul Mun Pass, sighted the steam launch Tommy Atkins on her port bow. She proceeded up the starboard side of the channel. At 7.12 p.m. she heard one short blast which she answered with one short blast and later these signals were repeated. At 7.15 p.m. while her engines were stopped she came into collision with the starboard side of the steam launch "Tommy Atkins" which subsequently sank.

We find that the steam launch "Tommy Atkins" was on a voyage from Castle Peak to Hongkong, as attempted to enter the Cap Sul Mun Channel from the north and that the position given her coxswain for sighting the s.s. "Kwong Fook Cheong" and the collision are inaccurate and not to be relied upon.

We find that the cause of the collision was that the steam launch "Tommy Atkins" was on the wrong side of the channel and that no blame is attributable to the master or officers of the s.s. Kwong Fook Cheong.

EARTHQUAKE IN NORTH CHINA

MANY CASUALTIES IN BARRACKS

Kalgan, Jan. 23. A severe earthquake shock was felt yesterday over a wide area in North China provinces.

The exact extent to which the quake, which was recorded in Kalgan and elsewhere in Charhar and Sulyuan, inflicted damage to property and inflicted casualties has yet to be discovered.

According to a report from Kweihua (Sulyuan), Wuyuen, in northern Shanai, was also severely shaken by a series of tremors with the result that many houses collapsed or were damaged and many inhabitants killed or injured. A military barracks at Wuyuen collapsed, bringing death to about 100 soldiers.—Central News.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract
Problem

Don't think just because you have a winning trick in your hand, that it always is safe to cash
it. In to-day's hand the declarer throws West in the lead, granting him a good trick and leaving him
with another good trick.

Before cashing that good trick,
West should stop to reason why
South has let him in to make those two tricks. Of course, the answer is that South, the declarer, wishes
to get a squeeze on the East player
and has no squeeze card of his own; so he deliberately throws
West in the lead, in an endeavour to get him to squeeze his own partner.

The bidding is normal and West's natural lead is the eight of spades.
A small spade is played from dummy and East wins the trick with the king.

He returns the deuce of spades,
West wins with the ace and returns
the ten of spades. A club is discarded from dummy, East discards

a club, and South wins the trick
with the jack.

South cashes the ace of hearts
and then leads the eight of hearts,
West's queen dropping. Dummy wins the trick with the king. A small diamond is led, East playing the ten, and declarer finessing the queen which holds the trick.

The drop of the queen of hearts
by West marks East with four hearts. The fact that he went up on the diamond marks him with probably the king and jack of diamonds. It looks as though it is impossible to make the contract.
But South, the declarer, decides to try to squeeze East; so he leads the seven of spades, which West wins with the nine, a small club being discarded from dummy. East has to drop the eight of diamonds.

If West makes the mistake of cashing his six of spades, which,
of course, is a good card, a small diamond will be discarded from dummy and East will be squeezed.
If he lets go a heart, both hearts in dummy will be good, while if he lets go a diamond or a club, those cards will be good in the declarer's hand.

Whichever cards East releases,
the declarer will squeeze him in
that suit, and the contract of three no trump will be made. This play is known as the suicide squeeze.

Today's Contract Problem

While the natural contract,
here, is three no trump by South, which can be made easily, one pair bid four spades and made it—an interesting play. Can you make four spades against the best defence?

GERMAN REPLY

DISAPPOINTMENT FELT

Paris, Jan. 23.

It is reliably learned that the French Government is definitely disappointed with the nature of the German Reply to the French memorandum on disarmament.

While the text of the document is still withheld, it is understood that the German Reply makes no concessions to the French proposals, but instead courteously presents reasoned arguments in justification of Germany's previous demands.

The Note further puts a number of questions on technical points and these are being studied by the French Ministers who are on the National Defence Committee of the Cabinet.

It is generally expected that the French Government's reply to Germany will be made as rapidly as the internal political situation allows.

BRITISH INTERVENTION?

In the meantime, France attaches the greatest importance to the possibility that the British Cabinet will to-morrow decide to make proposals to Germany from the British angle in an effort to modify what is regarded in France as German intransigence.

JAPANESE BUDGET

163 MILLION YEN
FOR MANCHURIA

ARMY AND NAVY
Y.300,000,000

Tokyo, Jan. 23.

Presenting the Budget in the Lower Chamber of the Diet this evening, the aged Minister of Finance, Mr. Takahashi stated that altogether the expenditure will total Yen.2,112,000,000.

Since the present economic condition of Japan does not warrant any increases in taxation, it has been decided to raise Yen. 881,000,000 by loans, which represents a decrease in loan flotation of Yen.131,000,000 as compared with last year.

Mr. Takahashi outlined the more important individual appropriations as follows:

Manchuria, Yen.163,000,000.
Emergency Relief, Yen.125,000,000.

Army, Yen.110,000,000.
Navy, Yen.100,000,000.
Foreign Exchange losses, Yen. 80,000,000.

The Cabinet met this afternoon when the members had before them the texts of the German reply to the British questions and to the French Aide Memoire on armaments.

A full meeting of the Cabinet takes place to-morrow. — British Wireless.

INDEPENDENCE IN SINKIANG

GOVERNMENT FORMED

Moscow, Jan. 23.

A new government, proclaiming its independence of China, has been established at Kashgar, according to a Tass Agency report from Tashkent.

Hotan Emir, whose domain is near the Indian border, is said to be actively supporting the new government, which is said to have declared itself the government of the whole of the eastern part of Sinkiang Province, and has also declared its full separation from China.

Savit Domula, a well-known merchant, who is looked upon as a protégé of Hotan Emir, heads the new Government.

A delegation has been sent to Kabul to negotiate mutual recognition with Afghanistan.

It is understood the mission will afterwards go to India.

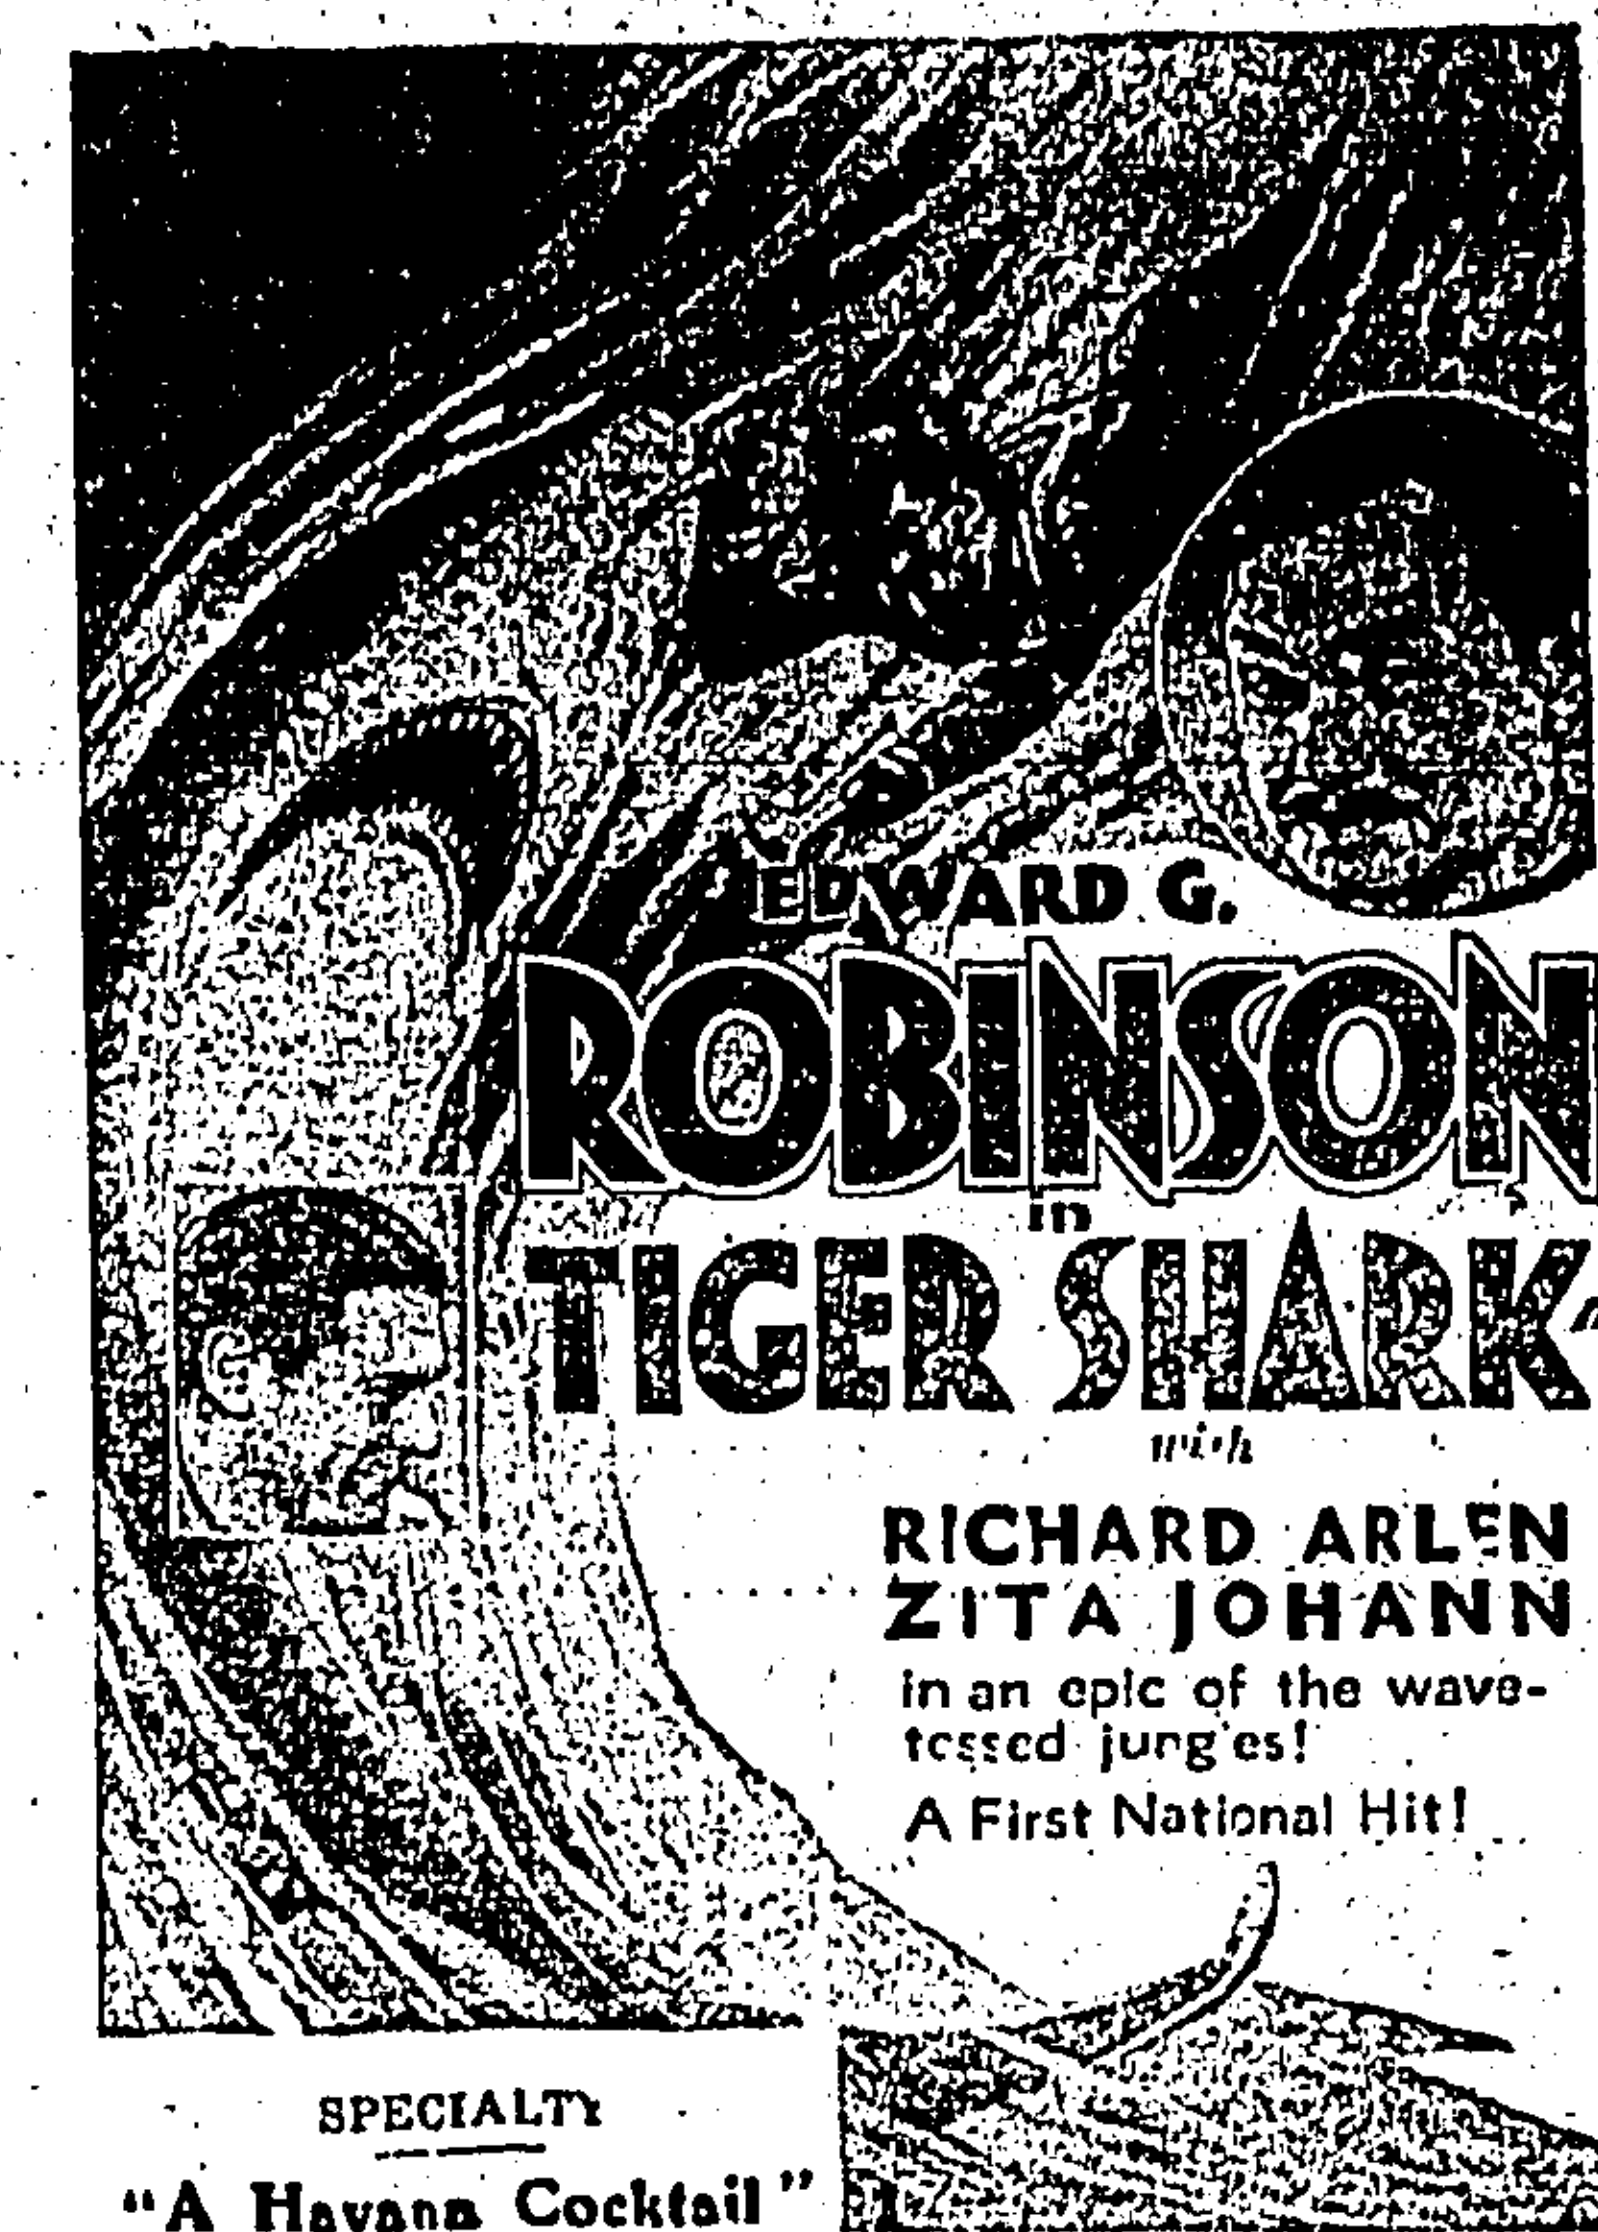

In the declaration of independence published by the new government, the watchword is "Banish the Chinese from Sinkiang." — Reuter.
